HOUGHTON DIVISION
LIBRARY OF MASSACHUSETTS
BOSTON, U. S. A.

PARIS, May 24 (AP)—The Allied armies caught German armored columns in an artillery cross-fire today in a new effort to cut the Reich army's corridor to the sea and turn the tide of the battle for mastery of the English channel.

Masses of Allied infantry also weighed down on the German salient, pressing south from Flanders fields in the Cambrai region and north from the Somme river in a pincers movement designed to break off the spearhead which has twisted west to the channel coast. This turn in the campaign brought into full play for the first time the two branches of the service in which the Allies claim superiority.

NAZIS IN 2 NEW SMASHES AT CALAIS, HOLD BOULOGNE

German capture of Boulogne—France's strategic port, 20 minutes by air from London—was admitted in authoritative London quarters today.

The sweeping Nazi rush to the sea, preliminary to a heralded invasion of England, also gained in two other smashing blows.

German mechanized troops were reported in Berlin to have advanced to within close reach of Calais—the "gateway" French channel port only 22 miles from Dover, England—while another Nazi force grappled in fierce fighting with Allied troops in the streets of Ghent, Belgium.

Ghent is 30 miles northwest of Brussels, where the Germans were reported attacking on the outskirts of the city.—Editor's Note.

TROOPS SUNK

Berlin also claimed Nazi bombers sank six loaded transports in the English channel and scored hits on several warships.

A Paris radio broadcast said 5000 German mechanized troops were "isolated" in the bitterly-contested Amiens sector—on the south prong of the Nazi pincer—and that other German forces in Flanders had "stalled" from lack of fuel.

The trend of battle in the critical struggle for mastery of the English channel veered rapidly north, with the Germans striking hard for the shortest direct jumping-off base for England—at Calais.

In so doing, Hitler's armored legions simultaneously tightened the steel trap on between 500,000 and 1,000,000 Allied troops "pocketed" in northern France and Belgium.

With the success of the German drive to the channel, the Nazis jubilantly declared the encirclement of the Allies was nearing airtight completion, and said:

"A great destructive battle may occur earlier than was expected."

FALL OF ARRAS

The Germans also reported the fall of the last Allied-held forts in Maubeuge, France, just south of the Belgian border. Tournai was declared captured.

Reports reaching German diplomatic sources in Bern, Switzerland, also listed the capture of Montreuil and La Touquet on the channel, and said the Nazis had retaken Arras, in the Cambrai battle sector.

Britain, throwing a reinforced naval and military guard along her southern shores, had a fresh taste of the Nazi aerial threat as anti-aircraft batteries on the southeast coast blazed away at German planes making a morning raid on shipping off the coast.

ITALY READY TO JUMP

Italy appeared only one short step away from going into the war against the Allies—25 years to the day after her entry into the World War on the side of Britain and France. Italian Line officials announced the scheduled sailing of the Italian liner Rex from Geneva May 29 had been indefinitely postponed.

While some Italians believed Mussolini might judge this the proper time to bring Italy into the conflict and others debated whether her first thrust would be against France or Yugoslavia, a gathering of Fascist students was told they were meeting "on the eve" of "the last war of liberation which . . . again will make the Mediterranean our sea."

DENT GERMAN LINES

In their effort to squeeze shut a giant pincer through the middle of the Nazi salient, the Allies had a start, however small, through dents driven on the north and south from the Somme and Flanders—precious gains achieved in the war's greatest battles.

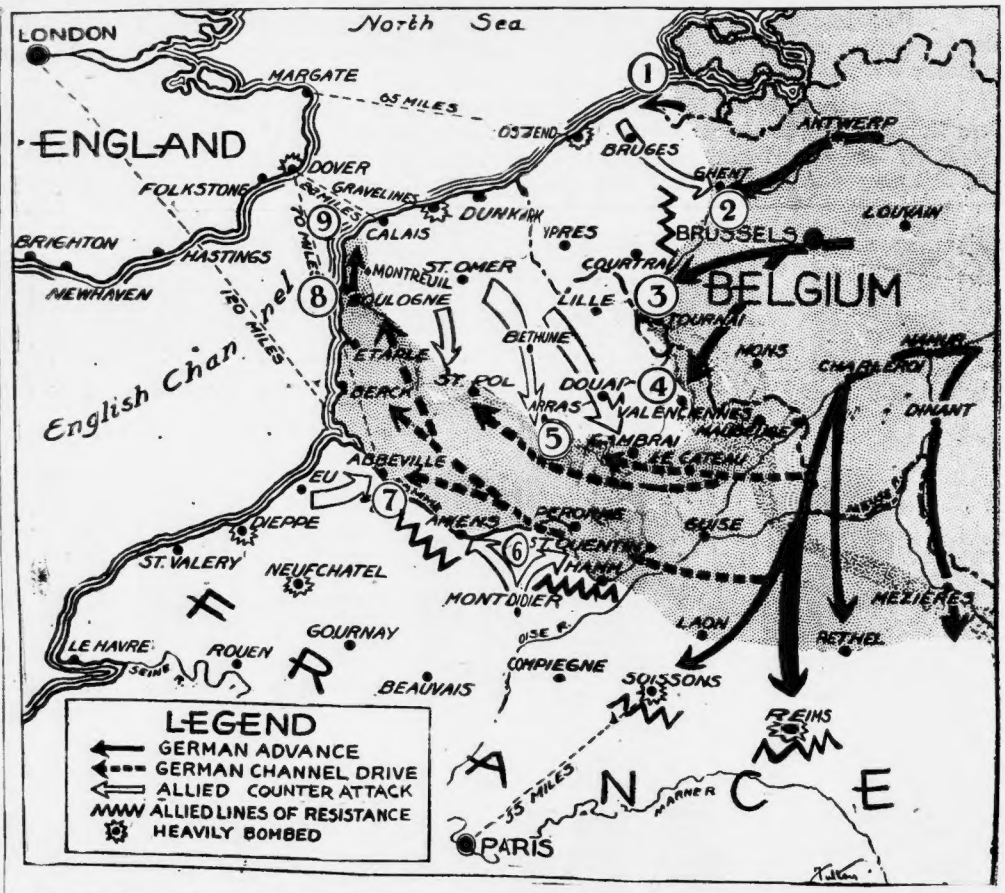
British, French and Belgian forces smashed against the salient, defended by a thin line of Nazi motorized troops, from the north of the outskirts of Cambrai, where the German-held territory narrows to a bottleneck.

Some 45 miles to the southwest of Cambrai, the French central army dented the German positions and drove to the environs of Amiens to carry on the Allied twin offensive.

In an attempt to relieve the Allied pressure, the Germans launched a tremendous attack south of Sedan, in the Attigny sector, but the French said they were repulsed.

Matching the furious ground fighting, Britain's Royal Air Force hurled waves of bombers and fighter planes against German positions.

Awake to their imminent danger, the British during the night posted naval patrols along their channel coast and rushed troops to south coast towns as precautions against a lightning Nazi invasion.



THE WAR TODAY—The nine-point struggle on the Western Front is graphically shown here . . . with Nazi armies plunging toward each other at (1) and (8) in drive to close up the channel coast . . . as they advanced at Ghent (2) in face of Allied counterattacks. Tournai (3) and Arras (5) have been retaken by the Germans, whose forces at Abbeville (7) have been strengthened. Counterattacks by Allied armies at Valenciennes (4) and St. Quentin and Amiens (6) are aimed to pinch off the narrow German thrust. Meanwhile, in the channel (9) German air forces claim to have sunk six loaded transports, bombed Allied warships.

British Fight Invasion Peril, Hold 40 More Spy Suspects

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, May 24—Great Britain strengthened the defenses of her southern coast today against the zero hour of direct attack threatened by the smashing German drive on key ports across the narrow English Channel.

The nation worked quickly while awaiting the outcome of the battle between the Allied and German armies for mastery of the strategic Belgian and French coastal positions.

The British felt certain the next blow would fall directly upon England if the Nazi mechanized columns were able to drive home their wedge between the Allied forces and thus consolidate footholds along the coast.

With powerful British naval units patrolling the channel and strong detachments of troops taking up positions in south coast towns all during the night, the first defense activity of the day occurred in the southeast this morning. There anti-aircraft guns went into action as German planes appeared over the coast.

LONDON—Ironical study is this . . . as British tanks rumble through a London street, passing a theater marquee which advertises film named "Hell's Cargo." Truly these tanks bear cargoes of hell . . . cargoes that will be directed toward any attempt to spread arena of war to London area. Meanwhile, Alfred Duff Cooper, British Minister of Information, declared his country to be "in fearful danger."

FRENCH HOLDING ON SOMME

PARIS, May 24 (INS)—French forces are holding firmly to new positions along the Somme river, where they pounded into the outskirts of Amiens and hammered a dent in the German-held corridor to the channel, the French high command announced today.

In the north the Germans are attempting to increase their pressure, it was stated, but south of Sedan renewed German assaults failed to make "appreciable progress."

The latest official French version of the fighting was contained in a terse communique apparently worded with the primary intention of preventing any military information reaching the enemy.

Associated Press reported Gen. Maxime Weygand, Allied commander-in-chief, returned from the front this afternoon and conferred with Premier Reynaud and Marshal Petain, vice-premier. Earlier Reynaud talked with Sir Ronald Hugh Campbell, British ambassador. German troops, the French spokesman said, were trying to plug the gap in the Allied lines near Bapaume, but Germans continued to move northwest through the opening.—Editor's note.

BATTLE FOR AMIENS

A crucial battle was reported raging for possession of strategic Amiens on the northern bank of the Somme after French mechanized forces dented the southern flank of the German "bulge" to the channel.

A French military spokesman said all yesterday there was "extremely heavy fighting," particularly in the Cambrai-Valenciennes region and around Arras, where the Germans battled to widen the 27-mile breach and smash the pivot of the Allied line.

He said German motorized detachments which had pushed on to the Boulogne region are meeting stiff English resistance.

Paul Archinard, NBC representative in Paris, said in a broadcast received in New York today that 5000 German troops of mechanized units were reported "isolated" in Amiens and that other Nazi mechanized forces had "stalled" from lack of fuel.

40 SUSPECTS SEIZED

Pressing the roundup of suspected "Fifth Columnists," police arrested five more member of Fascist Leader Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union today while the home office forbade a Communist party meeting scheduled for Sunday.

More than 40 suspects have been taken into custody.

Three members of Sir Oswald's organization were taken from their homes here, as a result of information gleaned in yesterday's roundup which caught Sir Oswald himself. Two others were arrested by Manchester police.

Four other men identified as union soapbox orators were jailed in North London for from one to three months for "insulting words and behavior."

CAPT. FRANZ VON RINTELEN
Held as Spy in London

German Spy Ace Held in London

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Capt. Franz von Rintelen, noted for German espionage activities during the World War and in recent years a resident of England, was detained today in England's drive against Fifth Column activities.

In the World War, Von Rintelen was one of the chief German spies in the United States, then came to England in 1926 as a "conscientious objector" to Nazism in Germany. He had been allowed freedom of movement here.

NAZIS CLAIM 6 TROOPSHIPS SUNK; PUSH ON TO CALAIS

BERLIN, May 24 (AP)—Germany's legions in rolling armor have crashed through Scheldt river fortifications into Tournai and Ghent, Belgium, and have approached the "gates of Calais," vital channel port on the French side, authoritative sources declared today, revealing at the same time costly Allied troopship losses.

Engulfing the French town of St. Omer in their path, fast-moving German armored cars were said to have approached Calais this forenoon. Calais lies only 22 miles across the channel from the chalk cliffs of Dover, England.

It is assumed St. Omer, less than 20 miles southeast of Calai, wa taken lat night or early this morning.

The Calais drive gave shape to the German aim of setting the stage for an attack on England. It also forged a new link in the chain of fire and steel the Nazis are drawing tighter around 500,000 to 1,000,000 Allied soldiers trapped in Flanders.

6 TROOP SHIPS SUNK

The power of the penetration of the Scheldt defenses was typified by the German high command which said "divisions" had broken the line, their momentum carrying them on westward to the Lys river, perhaps across it.

In smashes beyond the tangled lines of battle, the German high command announces that the Nazi air force reported it had sunk six loaded transports in the English channel and scored heavy bomb hits on several warships, including a large vessel—"probably a cruiser."

A German announcement that Loretto Heights, northwest of Arras, had been captured indicated a German spearhead was threatening the strongest point of the encircled area, the French industrial city of Lille, 25 miles northeast of Arras.—Editor's note.

Authorized sources said that German and Allied forces were fighting in the streets of historic Ghent, an important communications center, 30 miles northwest of Brussels, fallen Belgian capital.

"The region of northern France and Belgium wherein the enemy armies are encircled was yesterday further tightened by the successful attacks of German troops on all sides," said the high command.

"In Flanders German divisions broke through the fortified Scheldt position and advanced as far as the western embankment of the Lys."

The French fortress of Maubeuge which had been passed by the German sweep across the middle of the little Maginot Line fronting on Belgium also was taken—the occupation completed yesterday with the capture of the last fortified works.

In the Artois region, north of the narrow neck of the German corridor to the channel coast, German troops were said to have stormed

DOCTOR LINKED IN LOTTERY

Even when he had been warned that use of the name of the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital in a nationwide lottery was unlawful, Dr. Frank Deacon, former head of the Michigan CCC Medical Corps, insisted he had a chartered right to the name and would not change it, Atty. Louis Jaffee of Chicago testified in federal court here today.

Jaffee was a government witness against Dr. Deacon, who is on trial on indictments charging conspiracy and illegal interstate transportation of lottery tickets.

Of 72 persons indicted in connection with the alleged lottery, a $20,000,000 fake and swindle, according to the government, all but two have pleaded guilty.

One of the two is Dr. Deacon. The other is a woman, now in physical condition unfitting her for trial.

Atty. Jaffee described at length conferences and directors' meetings he said Dr. Deacon attended for the purpose of organizing the purported hospital lottery.

Complaint of persons connected with the real Will Rogers Memorial Hospital finally caused Dr. Deacon and his associates to file a court agreement promising to discontinue use of the name, Atty. Jaffee testified.

Former Mayor O'Brien's Wife Dies in Revere

Mrs. Marion B. O'Brien, wife of former Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere, died today at her Revere home in Pleasant st. after an illness since last October.

Surviving, in addition to the former mayor, are their 10-year-old daughter, Patricia Anne; Mrs. O'Brien's father, Michael Tuohy, Dorchester, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Crowley, Highland st., Arlington.

Born 40 years ago in Liverpool, England, Mrs. O'Brien came to America when two years old and lived with her family in North Attleboro until she met O'Brien 12 years ago. She was married to him there.

During the 12 years of the marriage, the couple lived in Revere, where he was city treasurer before being elected mayor.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 9 a. m., with a solemn high mass of requiem sung at the Immaculate Conception Church, Revere. Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery, Arlington.

Attending will be delegations from numerous clubs and organizations of which Mrs. O'Brien was a member, including the American Legion Auxiliary, the Catholic Daughters of America, the Revere Women's Club, the Revere Visiting Nurses' Association, and others.

Banker Lauds FHA Loan Plan

Banking "for the little fellow" is the aim of the new loan service of the Federal Housing Administration, Walter B. French of New York, deputy manager of the American Bankers' Ass'n, said today.

Addressing the Massachusetts Bankers' Ass'n at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, French asserted that when the FHA goes out of existence banks will inaugurate some similar small loan plan to "keep the man of moderate means out of the clutches of loan sharks."

Berlandi Contempt Defendants Plead

Three defendants pleaded not guilty today in municipal court, while the fourth pleaded guilty, in the so-called Berlandi case, in which all were summoned to show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court.

The case grows out of a North End handbag theft, for which Alfred Berlandi, brother of Angelo Berlandi, one of Mayor Tobin's secretaries, was originally arrested.

Later, however, Carmen Giordano of the North End went to police, confessed the theft and pleaded guilty. In superior court, Giordano then testified that Angelo Berlandi had persuaded him to take the blame in the case, promising that he, Angelo, could have the case "squashed."

BROUGHT FROM JAIL

As a result of the disclosures, the two Berlandis, Giordano and Police Lieut. Harold P. Watkins, who was alleged to have asked 24 hours' delay in the Berlandi case so that the confessed thief might be produced, were all summoned to answer contempt charges.

Before Chief Justice F. Delano Putnam in municipal court, Alfred A. Berlandi was first to plead. He was in the cage, having been brought over from State Prison, where he is serving a sentence for burglary in Middlesex County.

Alfred pleaded not guilty to the contempt charge, after waiving reading of the complaint.

YOUTH PLEADS GUILTY

When Clerk B. Harvey Hudson asked Giordano if he wished the complaint read, the youth appeared puzzled, but finally answered no. Called upon to plead, he hesitated, then said in an uncertain voice.

"Guilty."

Angelo Berlandi was last and he, too, pleaded not guilty.

Asst. Dist-Atty. Edward M. Sullivan precipitated protests by counsel when Sullivan moved that the defendants each be recognized in $1000 personal recognizance.

Atty. John E. Hannigan, representing Lieut. Watkins, protested that his client was a responsible person holding a responsible post in the police department and that bail, nominal or otherwise, should not be attached to Watkins.

PROTEST ON BAIL

A similar protest was made by Atty. Damon E. Hall, former president of the Boston Bar Ass'n, representing Angelo Berlandi.

Chief Justice Putnam, however, told Prosecutor Sullivan that his suggestion would be followed, and bail was set at $1000 personal recognizance.

It was explained then that witnesses had not been summoned for today by the district attorney's office because of an understanding between counsel that there would be a continuance.

Agreement was made that the attorneys would meet an hour later to decide the date of the hearing, meanwhile checking on what commitments they had coming up.

At this meeting, because some of counsel found they would be on other cases until then, Chief Justice Putnam set Monday, July 8, as the hearing date.

Lawyer Says Girl's Suit Based on Fraud

Charging that "this whole case is a fraud," Atty. George A. McLaughlin, counsel for Robert A. Nordblom, wealthy Boston realtor, made the defense final argument today in the $100,000 assault and battery suit brought against Nordblom by Mrs. Dorothy McFaden.

Before launching into his summation, Atty. McLaughlin lost out in a motion to have Judge Jesse Morton direct a verdict by the superior court jury.

McLaughlin's motion was based on the ground that the testimony of Mrs. McFaden, attractive divorcee, revealed an agreement for Nordbloom to pay her $25 a week following the assault she alleged was committed on her aboard his yacht.

CALLS CASE "FRAUD"

"This has been a frank case from my client's standpoint," said Atty. McLaughlin in his summation.

"There has been no attempt to color my client's relationship with this woman. It does no good to any man or to any case to attempt to blacken character.

"The suit here is for assault and battery. It is not breach of promise. At least it started out as a suit for assault and battery. We say she was never assaulted. I say this whole case is a fraud.

"Some men are fools where women are concrened and I hold no great brief for my client on that ground. The fact that he has been a fool with this lady is no ground to further punish him. Her relationship with him was much rewarded with gold or its equivalent.

"Just remember, from the start of the case Mr. Nordblom, when asked who the men on the boat were, said Mr. H. and Mr. B. My brother insisted on names. Tehn it went along as Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Breen.

SPEAKS OF "PRICE"

"Then only yesterday I gave up the ghost. Agreements were of no avail, and finally you learned who Mr. Breen was.

"My client isn't such a bad fellow. He has tried to keep from the witness stand two innocent young men and a lady. McFaden would have you believe that Mr. Breen, a man of reputable character, purchasing agent for the city of Boston, chairman of the Housing board, took her off the boat and threw her into a taxicab and left her.

"Not once has the plaintiff tried to get him into court.

"We all know these affairs go on. When they come into a courtroom we knew one of two things—either the price has been fixed at a point where the victim can't pay for protection of his name, or he can't pay because he hasn't got it.

"One of the ways of scaring a defendant—one of the ways of making his knees knock together—is to say something in the case as to hold him to degeneration in the community.

"At the start of the case, the question was asked of Mr. Nordblom, 'Wasn't this a nude bathing party; isn't it a fact that Mrs. McFaden protested?' all of which he denied.

"Yet not one word of proof was offered in the case. Why do you suppose that question was asked? Don't you suppose that the men it was asked of immediately faded into obscurity? Don't you suppose they said: 'If this is the kind of a mess it is, you can't go to court and defend yourself?'

"Those were the tactics used, against which decent men would rebel.

"When this young lady took the stand not one word did she say about a nude bathing party. It was solely asked for the humiliation and degradation it would bring."

Parolee Cited In Morals Case

State Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman today reported to Gov. Saltonstall and the executive council the case of Michael Caricari, 30, of High st., Springfield, a State Prison parolee who was given jail sentences yesterday in Springfield.

Because of his conviction on morals charges, involving a girl who was sent to Lancaster, Caricari may be sent back to State Prison to serve out the balance of a 20-to-26-year term imposed as a parked car bandit on May 12, 1927.

On Nov. 27, 1935, he was given a Thanksgiving pardon under parole conditions, which were to continue to May 11, 1953.

On April 3 of this year, however, he was arrested on the morals charges and yesterday was given concurrent sentences of 18 months and one year in Hampden County jail.

STOCK LEADERS ADVANCE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Steels and motors led a quiet and selective rise in today's stock market.

Gains of fractions to $2 a share were fairly well distributed in the early hours, but at midday these gains were cut.

Attracting modest support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of N. J., Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Westinghouse and du Pont.

Inclined to lag were Sperry, Eastman Kodak, North American and American Smelting.

Bonds and commodities were a trifle uneven. The "free" pound sterling maintained its balance while the French franc eased.

Although the war news was still of a contradictory nature, some traders turned to the buying side, brokers said, on the theory the list was due for a come-back after its lengthy decline, even if it slides later. The speed-up of rearmament bills in Congress, expected to prop a number of industries, was viewed as constructive.

National Flying Drive Planned

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt is considering an intensive national campaign to popularize flying, aviation leaders reported today, as part of his proposal for an eventual American force of 50,000 warplanes.

The scarcity of qualified pilots is generally admitted, and, on the basis of official estimates, several hundred thousand persons must volunteer for training in the next two or three years to meet the Army and Navy requirements already outlined to Congress.

Plans—which thus far lack official approval—already are taking shape among military and civil aviation officials for a drive to make the United States "air conscious" on an unprecedented scale.

'Andy' Callahan, Boxer, Stabbed

LAWRENCE, May 24—Stabbed today by an assailant he refused to name, Andrew J. "Andy" Callahan, 29, former New England welterweight boxing champion, is in serious condition at Lawrence General Hospital.

Doctors said he had stab wounds of the abdomen and neck.

Police found Callahan injured when they were called by telephone to his home in Howard st. He would not make a complaint, but authorities asserted the knife wielder was known to Callahan.

He was reported missing.

Heiress to Russia Throne Is Born

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2 (AP)—The Princess Natacha, former Russian noblewoman and wife of Prince Vasili, San Francisco hotel executive, gave birth today to a daughter.

The child, named Marina, was hailed by the White Russian colony here as a potential "heiress" to the no-existent throne of Russia. The father is the son of Grand Duke Alexander of Russia.

Tobin's 'Hello Girl' To Wed on July 6

The engagement of Miss Eleanor M. DeCourcy, switchboard operator in Mayor Tobin's office, to George Steele of Gloucester was made known today by the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. DeCourcy of Fenwood rd., Roxbury.

The wedding will be at the Mission Church, Roxbury, on July 6.

Mother Denies She Kept Auto Trysts

SALEM, May 24—Automobile dates she was questioned about keeping with a tall, dark man with a mustache, while her yellow-haired 6-year-old daughter sat in the same car, were the subject of cross-examination as hearings on Mrs. Evelyn Powers' plea for custody of her child opened in probate court today.

Also asked of the 25-year-old pretty, slender mother were questions about her "keeping company" with any of three youths; and with, on another occasion, taking her child, Eleanor, along while she went on a swimming party with another young man last summer.

Mrs. Powers, who lives in Dee ave., Gloucester, denied any male companion had ever been any more than a friend to her.

LEFT HER HUSBAND

While mother and father sat on opposite sides of the courtroom, not looking at each other, the pretty, golden-haired center of the controversy played in the corridor outside. Her young voice, as she laughed, sounded through the door.

Mrs. Powers told Judge John V. Phelan she was married in 1933 and her daughter was born the following year. When the baby was six months old, in Augist, 1934, she left her husband because, she said, he didn't treat her as he should, and she took her child to live with her mother.

She supported herself and her baby until the end of the year, when she lost the job she had obtained.

DENIES ALL CHARGES

She said her husband offered to take Eleanor and care for her till Mrs. Powers was in position to support the baby again; now, she alleged, he refuses to part with the girl.

Under cross examination, she denied her separation resulted from her going to a dance with another man, or with keeping company now, or at any time, with a tall dark man with a mustache.

"I might have been seen with him, I go about with my friends, but there was no more," she said.

Dewey's Own Club May Shift to Willkie

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The Young Republican Club of New York, which last March endorsed Thomas E. Dewey for the presidential nomination and later reaffirmed the endorsement, will meet tonight to consider a proposal to switch its allegiance to Wendell L. Willkie.

It was in this club that Dewey first was active politically and he is a former chairman of the board of governors.

Dad Held as Child-Beater

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—A 47-year-old father who listened to his 16-year-old daughter recite how he beat her with a cat-o'-nine-tails, furnace poker and broomstick because she lied about playing hookey from school was held in $1000 bail for grand jury action on a felonious assault charge.

"That's one of the most brutal, cowardly assaults I ever listened to," said Magistrate Raphel Murphy after Helen Carl, her arm in splints and her ankle bandaged, told of the beating allegedly inflicted by her father, Joseph.

Helen and another daughter, Josephine, 13, are now being cared for by a special service agency.

Police Watching Two Boston Beano Games

Two more beano games are under police surveillance, City Censor John J. Spencer disclosed today after suspending beano licenses of six patriotic and fraternal organizations.

Spencer said he forwarded to Police Commr. Joseph F. Timilty reports made to him by City Councilor Perlie Dyar Chase that the two other games have been run in flagrant violation of Mayor Tobin's regulations.

Councilor Chase, foe of beano games, informed Spencer that one game has been operating day and night, six days a week, despite a rule which forbids more than one beano game a week in any hall.

WELFARE WORKERS PLAY

Spencer also was told that welfare recipients patronize the game and that small children play about the hall while their mothers play beano.

Prizes as high as $500 in cash have been awarded at the second beano game in violation of a rule which bans cash prizes in any amount and outlaws all prizes with a value over $5, Spencer was advised.

Five of the licenses suspended represented games operating in Huntington ave., Spencer said. The action was taken as a result of a drive by Capt. Thomas F. Harvey of Back Bay police.

HYDE PARK SUSPENSION

A sixth license, that of the Hyde Park Post, V. F. W., suspended during controversy between the censor's office and Police Commr. Timilty nearly two months ago, has been again suspended for giving cash prizes.

The places closed in the Back Bay were on the so-called "Beano Row." The Navy Post, American Legion, game was complained of for remaining open after the midnight closing hour.

Games operated under the names of the Yankee Division Club, the Disabled Veterans' Ass'n, Keenan Post, American Legion, and the Goodfellow Encampment, I. O. O. F., were closed for issuing coupons later redeemed for cash prizes.

Identities Sought In Three Deaths

Police in three Boston divisions sought to identify the bodies of three men, two of whom suffered heart attacks at almost the same minute. The third was found in Fort Point Channel.

The first victim collapsed while watching a bowling match in a Summer st. alley, downtown. The second man dropped dead in Tremont st., South End. Lieut. James Crowley of the Harbor Police discovered the third body floating in the channel near the Dover st. bridge.

VETERANS READY FOR POPPY DAY

Fashioned by the fingers of pain-wracked World War veterans in hospitals here, thousands of artificial poppies will be offered tomorrow for wear in remembrance of the honored dead of other wars.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of Massachusetts will conduct the 19th annual Buddy Poppy Drive throughout the state.

Cloth facsimiles of the little blood red blossoms that bloomed in Flanders Fields amid the bombardment and slaughter of the World War will be offered on principal streets of all cities and towns.

The State Buddy Poppy Committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in charge of the drive, is headed by State Adjutant Henry V. O'Day of Quincy. He is assisted by State Senior Vice-Commander Edward A. O'Brien of Worcester, State Junior Vice-Commander Joseph Peterson of Arlington, District Commanders Lawrence Bron of Boston and F. Edward McGuinness of Fitchburg, Deputy Inspector George Merrill, Past Commander John S. Flaherty of the Boston Police Post and Department Commander Wilfred E. Jacobs.

It's a Boy--- Father Pulls Through

His wife, Viola, presented him with a six-pound boy at a Denver hospital. But that was 'way back last Sunday morning. The doctors told him to "stick around, something more is going to happen."

He paced the corridors all day Sunday and Sunday night. Haggard and sleepless, he was still pacing Monday, and Tuesday, and yesterday. Then, with his nerves at the snapping point, another boy arrived, this one six pounds and 14 ounces.

"The strain on us fathers is terrific," said Christensen.

Old Fashioned Bread

In reading ads on this or that, you ought to wear a sceptic's hat, for some are written (sad but true) to take ad-vantage, ma'am, of you. Such ads (of which there's not a dearth) extoll their products past their worth, until the truth is, I declare, the "little man who wasn't there!" Now, madame, I sincerely state my words are all of honest weight. So when I say that vitamins, are in this bread where health begins, you may be sure that B and D are there as plain as ABC. Then if I state: (as state I do) "this bread is great," (and it is, too!) this is the truth, no artful sham. The proof? It's in the eating, ma'am!

FLINT SUIT SIGNATURE ATTACKED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 24 — Validity of the $1,000,000 promissory note in the Dutee W. Flint suit was under attack in superior court here today.

Testifying for the estate of the late Col. Samue M. Nicholson was 70-year-old Albert S. Osborne, New York handwriting expert who attained fame as an expert in the Hauptmann case.

Osborne stated that in his opinion the note and a confirmatory letter, on which Flint bases his claim, were not signed by Col. Nicholson in the form in which they now exist.

He expressed the opinion that the signature on the letter, dated April 14, 1938, in which Nicholson spoke of having given Flint the million-dollar note on Oct. 15, 1937, was not written either in 1937 or 1938.

Osborne said examples of the colonel's handwriting in those years showed it to be "decrepit, disconnected, illegible and uncertain in many ways."

He described the signature on the letter as "superior in force, execution and quality" to any signature the colonel made in 1937 and 1938 which he has examined.

Surplus Grab Cuts Brookline Tax Rate

Appropriation of $300,000 from the town treasury's surplus forced the Brookline tax rate for 1940 down $1.50 to $24.50, despite a reduction of $5,728,100 in property values, Brookline residents were told today by the board of assessors.

Taxes are expected to raise $3,755,173 this year, with income from the state figured at $315,000. The Boston Elevated deficit will cost the town $107,939, it was stated.

CHINESE BOY SPEEDS EDUCATION TO FIND MOTHER

ROCHESTER, N. H., May 24—Clarence Lew, 19-year-old Chinese youth, today was promoted to the —fifth grade in school here after spending only two days in first grade.

But there was an unusual reason behind Lew's drive for knowledge of English. He is searching for his mother and hopes a good knowledge of English will help him in the search.

Lew hasn't seen his mother since the death of his father in San Francisco 11 years ago. He came here recently to live with his uncle, Jimmy Lew, laundryman.

Braintree Citizens Hear Arms Warning

Gathered for the opening event in their town's tercentenary celebration, Braintree citizens heard a blunt warning from Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff that it is "high time" for America to arm.

The commander of the First Corps Area, U. S. Army, addressed 750 persons in Braintree Town Hall at the close of the first day of the town's elaborate anniversary observance. Many of his listeners were descendants of Braintree patriots who fought in America's first war—the struggle for independence.

ARMY NEEDS SUPPLIES

"It will take from one to two years for the United States to produce sufficient supplies for equipping the present army properly," Gen. Woodruff warned.

"Our army today stands 17th in the world's list of army strength—Finland, Belgium, Holland and even Switzerland possess stronger armies. It's high time we started to outfit our soldiers with adequate weapons and motorized equipment."

Historical exhibits in several church parish houses and private homes and special programs in public schools were scheduled for today, designated as Old Braintree Day.

COSTUME BALL TONIGHT

Scenes of long ago and stories of famous early settlers will be recalled during a costume ball at the Town Hall tonight.

At noon tomorrow, a civic observance of the tercentenary will be held in the First Parish Church, Quincy sq. Gov. Saltonstall and the Rev. Anthony J. Lewis of Braintree, Eng., will open a tube which was sealed during the town's 200th anniversary celebration in 1840.

At 3 p. m. tomorrow an historical parade will bring back more scenes from the town's colorful past. Numerous sports events are also scheduled for Saturday. The tercentenary celebration will close with a service at Hollis Field Sunday afternoon.

RED CROSS BOOSTS PACE, ASKS MORE SMALL GIFTS

Stressing the urgency of providing relief to war-blasted humanity before hunger and exposure take their toll, workers for the Red Cross War Relief Fund today coupled gratitude for major contributions with an appeal for more small donations.

J. W. Farley, general chairman of the Boston Metropolitan chapter of the American Red Cross, appealed for contributions of $1 to $10 from the general public.

Joseph R. Hamlen, local chairman, was dispatched on a whirlwind tour of branch and district offices to speed up collections.

From Washington today it was announced that $1,600,000 had been contributed to date.

The local chapter is expected to collect $300,000 to meet its share of the national goal of $10,000,000. The total collected thus far is $85,000.

Rapidity in collections was urged by Chairman Hamlen in a speech to volunteers.

"More than 5,000,000 Belgian and French men, women and children are now fleeing before the invading armies into the free areas of France.

"Hundreds of thousands of refugees are suffering from malnutrition and disease and few have any possessions other than the clothes they wear and a few personal articles. Most of them are hungry and overwhelmed. It is a tragic situation," declared the chairman.

Major contributions in the past 24 hours include one of $5000 from Lever Brothers together with another for $1000 from its president, Francis A. Cantway; $1300 from Mrs. George F. Gardner, $1200 from State Street Trust Company, $1000 each from Merchants National Bank, Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Storrow, DONATION—A member of the Volunteer Motor Corp of the Red Cross, Miss Priscilla Phelan presents check for the war relief fund to General Chairman J. W. Farley. Today, contributions totaling $85,000 had been received in the campaign of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross.

PLAN FOR TRAINING 50,000 BOYS TO FLY TOLD BY F. D.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 24 President Roosevelt today announced plans to give 50,000 American boys primary pilot training by June 30, 1941. This vast expansion of potential aviation strength will be handled by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Mr. Roosevelt said. Youths between the ages of 18 and 25 will be eligible.

The President, in announcing his newest emergency preparedness step said this primary training would not produce finished military aviators but would save three months in any future training course necessary to turn out a fighting pilot.

3 SOURCES OF SUPPLY

The government the President said, will draw from three sources:

1—The 425 colleges and schools already enrolled in CAA aviation courses.

2—The large group of aviators already holding pilot licenses, but who have gone into other lines of activity.

3—The proper age group—18 to 25—who are not in college, but who are available and desirous of taking training.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that this was an expansion of the program which already has turned out 10,000 primary pilots—at the rate of 175 a day—since last year. At that time $4,000,000 was voted by Congress to enable CAA to inaugurate the training courses in colleges and schools

550 TRAINING FIELDS

When the new program is fully in effect, Mr. Roosevelt said there would be approximately 550 primary training centers scattered throughout the country.

He noted that in addition to giving 10,000 youths a fundamental education in aviation, the CAA had also turned out 1925 pact instructors with the advanced training necessary to expand the program.

The President said a group of substantial citizens already had endorsed this move to make the United States a major air power.

Among those in favor of his whole national defense program, Mr. Roosevelt said was the National Governors Conference. The chief executive declared the governors' conference would assemble in special session next month to approve his program and pledge support. Gov. Lloyd Stark of Missouri conferred yesterday with the President about the session.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

Mr. Roosevelt also revealed he would ask Congress for additional money to provide primary pilot training.

The money to handle this vast aviation program will come from a special supplemental appropriations, rather than from taxes already requested in the emergency defense budget

The President explained that the defense budget funds would be used for advance training which would turn out military fliers. He did not make any estimate of cost.

His disclosur came as a move was planned in Congress to inaugurate military training for 300,000 youths in Civilian Conservation Corps camps.

Senate Gets Big Relief Bill; Expect Quick O. K.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—A $1,111,754,916 relief program forbidding aid to aliens went to the Senate today, where leaders expected it to pass as overwhelmingly as it did in the House.

With a view to expediting action, Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, was asked to explain the provisions to an appropriations subcommittee Monday.

The bill, as approved, 354 to 21, by the House last night, would exclude relief to aliens, Communists and Nazi bund members, and would authorize $975,650,000 for the WPA in the eight months starting July 1. Most of the present restrictions against wasting relief money were renewed.

Experts estimated that the bill would provide jobs for an average of 1,900,000 persons a month, compared with the 1940 average of 2,042,000 and a peak of about 3,000,000 in 1936.

Only 11 of 73 proposed amendments were accepted by the Democratic majority. As the weary members yelled for adjournment, they defeated a motion by Rep. Tabor (R.) of New York, to substitute state and county administration for the present federal relief program.

Rep. Collins (D.) of Mississippi, proposed a $10,000,000 fund to start a $60,000,000 public buildings program, but it was rejected, 184 to 50.

Nazi Press Sees No Near Victory

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The German press advised Germans today against expecting an immediate victory, William Kerker, NBC correspondent, said in a talk from Berlin.

The newspapers acknowledged, Kerker said, that the German army was up against well trained, well equipped forces, and doubted a decisive victory would come for at least a month, estimated on the basis of the 15 days it took to conquer Poland.

A Berlin dispatch quoted authorized sources as saying disclosures of Dutch and Belgian "connivance" in Allied war plans against Germany might be published soon.

U. S. ACTS TO STOP 'FIFTH COLUMN'

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Congress and government agencies joined today in a widespread attempt to uncover and stamp out subversive "fifth column" activities which might jeopardize the nation's security.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson called on the public to cooperate by reporting to the Federal Bureau of Investigation "acts, threats or evidence of sabotage, espionage or other disloyal activities."

He said he personally would favor fingerprinting of aliens before visas to the United States are granted them.

Senator Byrd (D.) of Virginia urged that Congress lose no time in passing "drastic and compulsory legislation requiring a complete registration of every person in America who is not today a legal-born citizen."

RELIEF ROLLS PURGED

House sentiment on the subject was demonstrated yesterday when, without a word of debate, the legislators wrote into the billion dollar relief provisions barring Communists, Nazi "Bund" members and aliens from relief rolls.

President Roosevelt, a frequent critic of Dies Committee methods, today gave the inquiry an inferential pat on the back when he disclosed he considered its public hearings a good source of information on "Fifth Column" activities.—Editors Note.

At a press conference yesterday, Jackson said that President Roosevelt had prepared many months ago to cope with "fifth column" activities and that the FBI has "capably, zealously and effectively carried out its task."

Although he declined to disclose the nature of the measures eloped the attorney general said that the FBI would be enlarged if necessary to deal with subversive activities. He added that if Congress approves the transfer of the immigration service from the Labor Department, it would be made a separate unit like the FBI.

COOPERATION URGED

Urging the cooperation of citizens, Jackson appealed to them not to join organizations without first knowing who their associates and officers were and where money collected for dues goes.

"The greatest help that citizens can render," he said, "is to keep cool and not become frightened. Sensational statements as to fifth columns should be received with suspicion."

Senator Byrd declared in his statement that the time is here to "Purge America of every alien and foreign influence attempting to undermine and destroy our system of government."

"America is a free country for American citizens," he said. "It is not free for aliens who owe their allegiance to and take orders from other countries."

The Virginian, advocated registration and fingerprinting of aliens, said they should be compelled to carry identification cards subject to inspection at all times.

NAZIS BOAST BRITISH ARMY IS ABOUT DONE

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT, May 24—Nazi Germany's "iron ring" closed inexorably today around a million Allied troops caught in Belgium and France while military spokesmen for the Reich sketched this picture of the immediate future

1—British and Belgian participation in fighting on the continent of Europe soon will end.

2—Premier Mussolini and Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain may be drawn closer into the whirlpool of war.

3—Adolf Hitler will be in a position to launch his greatest campaign—an attack by land, sea and air against England.

ENGLISH INVASION READY

Preparation for the British invasion are all too evident in the English channel region occupied by the Germans.

Naval uniforms and the insignia of the coastal artillery are to be seen everywhere and Germany's crack fliers, decorated by Hitler's highest orders for achievements in Spain Poland and Norway all are here.

A portion of this dispatch is missing, probably due to censorship.—Editor's Note.

Judge Jails Boy in Girl Attacks

Announcing he believed a 14-year-old Roslindale boy was a menace to the community and that he would not be responsible for having him at large, Judge Daniel W. Casey in West Roxbury district court today sentenced the youth to an indefinite term in Lyman School.

The boy's stepfather appealed the sentence, but he could not raise $100 bail, and the lad was taken to Charles st. jail.

Judge Casey's verdict came after doctors of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital had pronounced the boy sane, but asked that he be released by the court so he could be treated as an out-patient at the hospital.

The youth was arrested a month ago after several Hyde Park parents had told police a boy in the neighborhood had taken their 5 or 6-year-old daughters into the woods, tied them to trees, and injured them.

On May 3 he was brought into West Roxbury court and charged with five specific offenses against five different girls, all under 6 years of age. At that time Judge Casey committed him to the Psychopathic Hospital.

B. & M. Worker Collapses, Dies

Arthur G. Parker, 52, of Wakefield, employed in the North Station office of the Boston & Maine R. R., collapsed at his desk today and died an hour later in a nearby first aid room.

He had been a railroad employe since 1906. A wife and two daughters survive him.

Privacy at Fair Home For Bay State Family

Complete privacy has been assured by the management of the New York World's Fair of 1940 for the family selected here as the Typical American Family in Massachusetts.

This winning family in the contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, in co-operation with the Fair management, will be free to come and go as they please and will not be made conspicuous or subjected to stares of the curious.

Every effort will be made to give this family an enjoyable personal vacation without one cent of expense to themselves from the time they leave Boston until they return.

Although the FHA house they will occupy is within the Fair grounds, it is secluded and the Massachusetts family will have complete privacy.

FURNISHED BY SEARS

This and the other newly-built FHA model home on the Fair grounds have been completely furnished by Sears, Roebuck & Co., and before the Massachusetts family leaves home for the exciting week they will be completely outfitted for the trip by this same concern.

Remember—the contest is open until midnight of Saturday, June 15. Entries, photographs of the families entered, and the accompanying letter of not more than 300 words, telling the qualifications of the family in question, must be in by that time.

As soon as possible after that, the board of judges will announce their selection of the winning family to spend the week of July 22 at the World's Fair.

In addition to the first prize, there are four other World's Fair trip prizes for the next four families picked as runners-up.

PRIZE LIST

Second prize: Free transportation, round-trip, between Boston and New York via New Haven Railroad; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and free guides—plus $40.

Third prize: Free transportation, via American Airlines; free admission for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $30.

Fourth prize: Free transportation, via Eastern Steamship Lines, cabin and meals free; free admission to the Fair for three days; free entertainment and guides—plus $20.

Fifth prize: Free transportation, via New Haven Railroad between Boston and Providence, and Colonial Steamship Line between Providence and New York; free cabin and meals; plus free admission for three days, free entertainment, free guides and $20 cash.

Hoare New British Ambassador to Spain

LONDON, May 24 (INS)—Sir Samuel Hoare today was appointed British ambassador to Spain "on a special mission."

Sir Samuel was Secretary of State for Air in the cabinet headed by former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, which resigned just before Winston Churchill was made prime minister.

LOWELL MAYOR FETED

LOWELL, May 24—Mayor George T. Ashe was back at his desk today flushed with the plaudits of fellow members of the Legislature who feted him at a testimonial dinner at the 1721 Club in Tewksbury. Some 200 persons attended.

Here Are Family Contest Rules

These are the rules governing the Typical American Family in Massachusetts Contest:

1—The Typical American Family Competition, conducted by the Boston Sunday Advertiser and Boston Evening American, in co-operation with the New York World's Fair of 1940, is open only to citizens of the United States residing in Massachusetts.

2—The name and address of each family, with the number of children, boys and girls, must be submitted on the official entry form, together with a letter of not more than 300 words describing the family and explaining why it should be selected as the Typical American Family in Massachusetts. No photographs will be returned.

3—Entries will NOT be judged by the literary style or excellence of the letters submitted, but strictly on the qualifications and characteristics of the family.

4—A recent photograph or clear snapshot of the family must accompany the entry.

5—The entry of a candidate family may be submitted by a relative or friend, or by a member of the family.

6—Entries close on Saturday, June 15, at midnight. The complete form must be mailed or delivered to the Advertiser-American Typical American Family Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass., before that time.

7—The selection of the Typical American Family will be made by a committee of distinguished Massachusetts men and women well qualified to establish the requirements of a Typical American Family, and the committee's decision will be final.

8—The parents and two children of the Typical Family selected, the eldest child to be not over 18, will be transported from Boston to the New York World's Fair and back by automobile, with all meals and hotel expenses paid. They will be entertained at the Fair for one week, beginning July 22, without any cost whatever to themselves. The Family, while at the Fair, will live for one week in a completely furnished house built inside the Fair Grounds in accordance with the standards set up for home construction by the Federal Housing Administration. The house accommodates four persons, and for this reason only four members of the Family selected may go to the Fair. The Family will have complete freedom of action as to what they want to do and see. They will, in fact, live each day as they would during any normal holiday period.

9—It is understood that entrants give permission to publish photographs and stories of their Family.

ENGLISH SET TO FIGHT NAZI 'CHUTE INVADERS

ants were already in Brixton Jail awaiting removal to internment camps.

Police disclosed that a $2400-a-year official of the ministry of health, who was arrested last night, had a secret tieup with the Fascists.

This Empire Day—Queen Victoria's birthday—marked the gravest crisis in the history of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

In two weeks the flying German columns had advanced 200 miles to the French channel port of Boulogne, at England's doorstep. Boulogne is 26 miles from Folkestone and only 85 air miles from London.

At the time of this admission the Germans had not even claimed Boulogne—saying, rather, that their channel vanguard had passed the city, heading for Calais to the northeast.—Editor's note.

A spokesman said that virtually all the British troops at Boulogne "got away." He indicated that the Germans were able to seize the towns because of their stronger forces.

The London Times underscored the gravity of Britain's position in an editorial calling for the immediate appointment of a director of defense to coordinate the home forces in the event England becomes a decisive battleground for the first time since the year 1066.

To counter the threatened blitzkrieg's invasion, whether it is launched with parachute troops or with forces rushed across the narrow channel in speedboats, England has formidable home defenses.

British believed that the divisions which have been training quietly and have been deployed in strategic centers could, with the help of the home defense battalions made up of ex-service men, the Dominion troops already here and the newly-organized local defense volunteers, destroy any force the Nazi would be able to throw upon this island.

British Fascists replied defiantly to the government's arrest of their tall, handsome leader, Sir Oswald Mosley, by scattering propaganda leaflets on the Thames embankment and the Strand.

One set of leaflets, labeled "Labor-Communist double cross," blamed "Labor and Communists leaders" for Britain's "present mess" and demanded that Britain accept Moseley's isolation policy.

Allies Have Received 2300 U. S. Planes

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Great Britain and France, responsible sources said today, have received more than 2300 combat and training planes purchased in this country shortly before and since war was declared.

Statistics of Allied purchases were reported to include orders for 6100 planes since last August, including 3000 by France, and 3100 by Great Britain, and negotiations were said to be in progress for acquisition of 4000 more.

2 Charlestown Sergeants Capture Suspect in Wild Battle

Stanley Buddrick, 25, of Hampshire st., Cambridge, overpowered by Charlestown officers in a rough-and-tumble fight, was questioned today concerning a variety of alleged thefts in Charlestown and Cambridge.

Sergts. Thomas Keating and Andrew Connelly spotted the youth in City sq. As they started to question him, Buddrick swung both fists and drew a revolver, police said. He was quickly disarmed and subdued by the two sergeants, however.

TROTSKY ESCAPES DEATH IN ATTACK

MEXICO CITY, May 24 (AP)—Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian revolutionary and longtime foe of Joseph Stalin, was attacked today in his suburban villa by 30 or 40 men who fired a barrage of shots into his bedroom. Flying glass injured him slightly.

A secretary, who said he spoke with Trotsky's authority, declared the "attack was personally directed by Joseph Stalin." Trotsky, who with Lenin and others led the Bolshevist revolution in 1917, has been vitriolic in his criticism of the "so-called Moscow trials" and acts of the present Moscow regime.

Trotsky came to Mexico in 1937 after the wandering exile that followed his falling-out with the powers of the Soviet Russia he helped to build as one of the leaders of the October, 1917, revolution.

Trotsky first resided at the suburban villa of the Mexican muralist, Diego Rivera, but lately has lived in a walled-in house in the village of Coyoacan, Mexico City suburb.

One of Trotsky's secretary-guards, Sheldon Harte, was missing after the attack, during which assailants gained entry to the grounds, took two motor cars, and broke down several doors. A fellow guard said Harte was "kidnaped."

Some members of the band held at bay several Federal district police who customary guard the place. The attackers, who left a number of incendiary bombs, were reported to have used "automatic and other rifles."

Raids Reveal Canada Spies

MONTREAL, May 24 (AP)—In swift overnight raids believed to be a prelude to a national drive against "Fifth Columnists," police seized six truckloads of swastikas, photographic equipment, cards and maps in Montreal homes and offices of suspected members of the National Unity Party, Canadian Fascist organization.

The raids, executed under defense of Canada regulations, followed closely seizure in London of Sir Oswald Mosley, Capt. Ramsey and others suspected of pro-Fascist sympathies.

There were no arrests here, but H. R. Gagnon, superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, said some prosecutions would undoubtedly follow investigation.

India Leader Plans Last Ditch Fight

BOMBAY, India, May 24 (AP)—Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the All-India Moslem League, declared today "whether the British agree or not, we shall fight . . to the last ditch" for the creation of independent Moslem states on northwestern and eastern zones of India.

His views were expressed in a message to the league's Bombay provincial conference meeting at Hubli.

Meanwhile, Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, said he would "leave no stone unturned to bring about a peaceful and honorable settlement of the present Indian deadlock."

Late War Bulletins

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—British fighter planes yesterday shot down 23 German planes and damaged 26 more, the air ministry announced today. The British were said to have lost eight planes.

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Three hospital ships filled with wounded soldiers from the British expeditionary force in France arrived at a south port today.

PARIS, May 24 (INS)—German war planes appeared over Paris today. Anti-aircraft guns ringing the city opened fire. Puffs of smoke from bursting shells were clearly visible from the boulevards.

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Britain is considering airdrome sites in northern Ireland, Capt. Harold H. Balfour, undersecretary of state for air, said today in a written reply to a question in the House of Commons.

GIBRALTAR, May 24 (AP)—Gibraltar was relieved today by an official announcement that the government has no intention of compelling the departure of any citizens except women with young children.

CANBERRA, Australia, May 24 (AP)—The Australian government today announced the banning of nine Communist newspapers.

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Helen Hiett, NBC correspondent in Paris, said in a broadcast to the United States today that word has just come that the French cities of Strasbourg and Metz have been bombarded during the night."

BUCHAREST, May 24 (INS)—British diplomatic officials today warned all British residents of Rumania to concentrate their wives and children at Constanza, Rumanian Black sea port, in case their evacuation may be necessary.

Queen in Plea To Dutch Indies

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina, Holland's refugee ruler, appealed to her subjects in the Dutch East Indies today to "set all differences aside" and rally around their "constitutional authority and aid him in his heavy task."

Queen Wilhelmina called upon the East Indies in a broadcast to remember that the "existence and salvation of the kingdom is at stake."

There was no other reference in the broadcast to "differences."

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Navy Yard Officials Report Skilled Mechanic Shortage

Officials at Charlestown Navy Yard today explained the job—or jobless—situation there.

At the present time, they said, there is a scarcity of skilled mechanics.

But, they emphasized, there are no jobs for laborers and there is a waiting list of 12,000 for any such openings.

Because of the scarcity of skilled mechanics, the yard has placed under instruction some 500 apprentices. Of that number, 200 are in the machinist class as workmen in that trade are harder to find.

The yard, under its expansion program, is increasing the working force at the rate of about 100 or more a week. This applies only to the trades.

Officials also pointed out that prospective laborers must be certified by the civil service before being selected by the labor board.

Hawaii Island Has Blackout

HONOLULU, May 24 (AP)—Throughout the territory of Hawaii the only light visible from the air was the glow of molten lava in Mauna Loa volcano on Hawaii island.

All lights were out the length of the archipelago; there was not an automobile lamp lit; even the lighthouses were dark. For 10 minutes last night it was blackout time in Hawaii.

For 10 minutes the territory tasted the tang of warfare; complete as it was possible to be in the make-believe version.

HITLER GAMBLING WITH NATION'S ALL

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 24—The armies of France struggled furiously today to meet a continued swelling attack by German troops in what seemed the most violent and may prove to be the most critical day of this two-week old battle "to settle history for a thousand years."

The fate of the Allied army in Belgium is at stake (here eight words censored), and all this within a fortnight.

Truly Adolf Hitler now is betting the entire fortune and future of the German people upon this one throw of the dice.

H. R. Knickerbocker

Neutral military observers estimate that he now has in motion in this single area of battle at least 75 divisions, meaning around 1,500,000 actual combat soldiers in battle units, and these include, it is now believed, all 10 of his famous mechanized and motorized Panzer divisions.

It is these Panzer units which Hitler today at any cost is jamming through a 25-mile gap between Arras and the Somme and shoving up the Belgian coast to cut off the Allied armies from their supplies.

Whatever the outcome of Hitler's plans and of this battle it must go down in history as one of the costliest ever fought. No official will give an estimate of the losses, but neutral professional observers declare that the operations of the last fortnight must have cost the Germans in Holland, Belgium and France not less than one-fifth of their forces, including over 1000 airplanes in which presumably 90 per cent of their crews perished.

(Here four words censored).

The hope of the Allies today lies in the Allied army in Belgium. Hope still exists that it can push down from the north across the narrow channel through which Hitler is pouring his troops into France and join hands with the French armies south of this German channel.

NAZIS SHIFT TACTICS

Were this accomplished it would cut off the Germans on the Belgian coast and bring the right plunder of several Panzer divisions into Allied hands. It would not only check the Germans but because of its immense moral effect might be the beginning of a final victory for the Allies.

But the Germans seem to have done this time what they have often done in history—namely, taken a lesson from French military tradition.

They appear to have appropriated Danton's famous "audacity, audacity, audacity" and without apologies have taken over Foch's doctrine of "attack, attack, always attack."

(Here 16 words censored.)

Instead of resting when they reached the sea and reorganizing as was expected and which would have given time for a French counter-offensive, Hitler's divisions went smashing ahead, using their terribly effective dive-bomb and tank assault which incidentally many military observers today agree must be that famous "irresistible new weapon" about which Hitler boasted.

PLAN BRITAIN ATTACK

Hitler's plan as seen by neutral professionals here is to try and take all the channel ports and thereby starve out the Allied army in Belgium which could last only so long as its supplies of munitions and food.

This period is estimated variously, but depends entirely upon how much material the army was able to take over in its hurried passage to the lowlands, plus whatever the Belgians were able to store or rescue.

(Here five words censored.)

From the Channel ports the Germans believe they could lay down a barrage of artillery fire upon the English coast under cover of which they would attempt to land powerful forces while their parachute troops tried to gain a foothold on various strategic points in the British Isles and their bombers rained death upon London.

The straits there are so narrow that the Germans believe their mines and submarines could effectively exclude the British navy from interrupting their landing operations

NO PANIC IN PARIS

The inhabitants of Paris are not panic-stricken and are not hungry. Some of them reflect, however, upon the German capture of Brussels and Rotterdam. Foreign military observers believe that if Hitler ever gets far enough seriously to contemplate an attempt to capture Paris he will try a lightning advance with tanks to surround the city from the west and south while clouds of parachutists descend.

(Here three lines censored.)

But France today is alert as never in its modern history.

Greece Opens Drive On Fifth Column

ATHENS, May 24 (AP)—Personal registration of all foreigners with the police was ordered by the ministry of public safety today, presumably to prevent the formation of a "fifth column." Punishment for non-compliance was to be expulsion or imprisonment.

ITALY SPURNS ALL OFFERS OF ALLIES

ROME, May 24 (AP)—Futile Allied offers of concessions to Mussolini in the hope of keeping Italy non-belligerent were reported today in Italian quarters.

With Italy observing the anniversary of her entrance into the world war 25 years ago today, unofficial observers said the French secretly offered special rights in Asia, credit facilities through the Suez canal and a free port at Jibuti, French Somaliland. Jibuti is the only rail outlet to Italy's Ethiopian empire.

Britain has been negotiating for an arrangement to lift the Allied blockade in the Mediterranean for Italy.

TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE

Mussolini, however, was quoted as saying the concessions were "too little and too late."

Some Italians more than half-expected Mussolini to celebrate today's anniversary by announcing that Italy finally is ready to strike for attainment of her long-heralded territorial aspirations.

There were no surface indications of the exact time or place of Italy's leap. Most guesses were that it would be against France or Yugoslavia, against both of whom Italy has filed territorial claims.

Italians have clamored for Corsica, French island off Italy's west coast, and for French possessions in Africa. Claims against Yugoslavia, less emphasized, concern chiefly Dalmatia, the section of the country along the Adriatic north of Italy's newly-acquired Albania.

PACT OF STEEL IS LINK

Italy, linked by a "pact of steel" to Germany, against whom she fought in the World War, today faced her former allies, France and Great Britain, with bitter claims that they had cheated her of her share of the spoils in the last conflict.

The Italian explanation was that Italy last time fought not the Austro-Hungarian and German peoples but their regimes. Now, according to Italians, it is the English and French who are trying to "starve" Italy and Germany into submission.

Reports from French Morocco that Italians there are persecuted kept alive the hostility which recent youthful demonstrations have shown for both Britain and France. About 130,000 university students have sent Premier Mussolini a message volunteering to take up arms against the western Allies, and the entire Italian press saluted their offer to help free Italy from what they termed confinement to the Mediterranean.

ITALY WAITED 10 MONTHS

With the World War almost 10 months old, Italy on May 24, 1915, declared war on Austria-Hungary. It was not until August 27, 1916, that [illegible] declared war on Germany. With these declarations Rome ended the purely defensive triple alliance signed among the three powers in 1882 and which for more than 30 years had shaped European reactions.

Germany's argument in 1914 was that she was bound by the alliance to protect Austria-Hungary against attack by imperial Russia, but Italy denied that Austria-Hungary was attacked. Instead, she said, she was the aggressor and that Italy herself was endangered by Austria-Hungarian designs in the Balkans. Although Austria-Hungary and Germany tried to satisfy Italian Adriatic demands, Italy went to war against them.

This time Rome and Berlin are bound by a military alliance which was just a year old two days ago. Italy's participation in the European hostilities appeared to most Italians to be imminent.

Sailing of Rex Postponed

ROME, May 24 (AP)—The sailing of the Italian liner Rex for New York has been postponed from May 29 to June 12, Italian Line headquarters in Genoa said today.

Asked the reason, line officials said, "We do not know."

It was recalled that the sailings of Italian liners were postponed at the outbreak of the war last September until it became apparent that Italy was not entering the conflict immediately.

Fifth Column Guard In Bay State Sought

Reorganization of a Massachusetts state guard as a protection against fifth column activity was recommended to Gov. Saltonstall today by City Councilor Maurice H. Sullivan of Brighton.

The state guard which was disbanded shortly after the World War, had consisted of mature men over the military age but in good physical condition and with previous service in army or navy, Sullivan pointed out.

BLACKOUT LIFTED IN SWEDEN

GOTEBORG, Sweden, May 24 (AP)—Lifting of the blackout from all Sweden was ordered, effective today, amid an easing of alarm provoked by the European war.

Blackout of the entire country was ordered on May 12, after Germany's invasion of the Netherlands and Belgium, for an indefinite period.

Fresh incidents nevertheless continued to emphasize the nearness of the conflict swirling in western Europe.

Several German planes yesterday were seen over Swedish territory, near the Norwegian border, and one drew the fire of the Swedish neutrality guard as it dropped down to about 300 feet. The trespasser was not hit.

A British bomber yesterday attacked a German steamer outside the Danish town of Helsingor, across narrow Oresund from the Swedish town of Halsingborg.

German anti-aircraft batteries swung into action but the outcome of the battle could not be determined from here. One dud from the German batteries landed in Halsingborg.

AUSSIES FLOCK TO WAR

SYDNEY, Australia, May 24 (AP)—Australians here are enlisting for the army and the air force at the rate of 1000 a day. Heavy recruiting is reported also in other Australian waters.

40 Seized in Irish 5th Column Raids

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 24 (AP)—A widespread police roundup of members of the outlawed Irish Republican army in northern counties resulted today in about 30 arrests. Many were awakened from sleep.

Ten more arrests in southern Ireland (Eire) were reported.

Police combed all six counties of northern Ireland in the country's biggest mass search for suspects.

The raids followed a statement by Viscount Craigavon, premier of Ulster, in London last night that northern Ireland was taking precautions familiar to those taken in England, where Scotland Yard yesterday arrested Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the Fascist "British Union," and others.

Eighteen I. R. A. members were arrested in Belfast, 12 in Londonderry, six at Armagh and four in Newry. They will be interned for the duration of the war, it was announced.

Lord Craigavon returned from London and said conscription was "a matter for the authorities on the other side"—meaning in England—"but in the meantime we are going to have a big recruiting drive."

Big U.S. Refugee Ship to Ireland

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—With American flags flying and searchlights streaming to display its neutral colors at night, the United States liner President Roosevelt today starts an eight-day run through northern war zone waters to bring home American refugees from Great Britain.

The 13,869-ton ship, taken off the New York-Bermuda passenger service and converted overnight into a refugee vessel, was prepared for a lone, unprotected voyage to Galway, Ireland, where refugees await its arrival.

Cots were placed in every available space to increase passenger capacity of 443—even in the ship's swimming pool.

Army Recruiting N. E. Volunteers

PORTLAND, Me., May 24 — Recruiting headquarters for Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire today sought volunteers for formation of a new streamlined army division of 15,00 men, composed largely of recruits, the first of its kind in the country.

Maj. John W. Bulger, recruiting officer, said the three states are asked to furnish 195 men, also some 100 replacements, bringing total enlistments in New England to about 300 by June 30.

Young men between the ages of 18 and 30 who enlist now will have the opportunity to select their branch of duty and will benefit by faster promotions and higher pay, Maj. Bulger said.

REPORTER DESCRIBES NAZI RAID

The following dramatic dispatch describing a German attack on the Belgian city of Tournai was filed by Robert G. Nixon, International News Service correspondent with the British expeditionary force, May 16. The censors refused to clear it until today, coincident with a German announcement that Tournai has been captured. Nixon has now returned to London.—Editor's Note.

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 24—From a hilltop overlooking the beautiful green valley which surrounds the town of Tournai I watched with horror-struck eye while 29 German bombers, their wings flashing in the sunlight, wheeled overhead and bombed the center of the refugee-filled city.

A few minutes later I entered the flaming, smoking and smashed ruins, saw the devastation wrought among the terrorized population and helped dig out the victims from shattered and blazing buildings.

SAW BOMBS DROPPED

I am not saying whether the Germans thoought they were attacking a military objective. But from the knowledge before my own eyes I know that the bombers laid waste numerous buildings in the center of the town and started raging fires with incendiary bombs

I saw nothing hit or anything anywhere near those crushed buildings which could be described as a military objective.

I was nearly 100 miles west of the fighting lines when I suddenly spotted squadrons of German bombers overhead.

Just as I came to the brow of a hill overlooking Tournai I quickly halted my car and sat watching. Suddenly anti-aircraft fire began thumping in the distance and cream-puffs of white smoke began bursting around the bombers, which were now over the town.

Then from the wheeling planes dropped tiny black objects and an instant later tremendous columns of smoke plumed to the sky from around the beautiful cathedral in the center of Tournai.

FINDS TOWN AFLAME

There came successive rocking blasts and then the smoke spread, mushrooming into a pall and almot obliterating the city, while spears of red flames thrustt through.

The bombers did their ghastly work at leisure, disregarding the anti-aircraft fire bursting about them and then made off in formation of four. I aped into the town to find its center an inferno of crackling flames.

HAMMER NEAR CHANNEL

Formidable German armored forces which had been advancing between Arras and the sea to the north were said to be nearing the French channel ports.

"A weak enemy advance from the south toward Amiens (on the flank of the German spearhead to the channel) was repelled," said the high command.

The Germans asserted yesterday's air losses for the Allies totaled 49 planes against 16 German planes missing. Fifty-six Allied tanks were listed as destroyed Wednesday.

Describing the progress made by the army yesterday as "very considerable," they said the Nazi units probably had not touched the coast town of Boulogne, south of Calais, but had passed to east of it northward.

French Hold Fast on Somme

the report of the "isolated" forces at Amiens, Archinard said, they told of numerous motorized units stalled in the Flanders region and added that Allied forces were busy "mopping them up."

Amiens had been taken by the Germans but the French command claimed today French troops had returned to the city and were holding newly won lines.—Editor's note.

The northern Allied army entrenched behind the Scheldt river at present is battling on three fronts, the spokesman said—on the east in Belgium, on the south around Valenciennes and Cambrai and Arras and on the southwest in the Boulogne-Bethune area.

Between Arras and the Somme river, he said, over their passage toward the channel, German motorized detachments and columns are speeding in all directions.

GERMANS HEMMED

These German troops, the spokesman said, are hemmed in on the south by the Somme and on the north by the British.

The spokesman added that German movements toward the coast are now "considered unimportant." He asserted the real battle is taking place in Flanders and centering on the towns of Valenciennes, Cambrai and Arras on a front extending over 40 miles.

He added that the French army is solidly entrenched behind the Somme and added:

"We had a series of small, local successes yesterday in which we drove the enemy from a majority of the minor bridgeheads he had secured on the southern bank of the Somme, particularly south of Amiens, where we penetrated the suburbs of the city."

The number of German troops zigzagging within the passage to the coast is not known, the spokesman admitted. But he declared the area is being searched and bombed continually by British and French planes.

To Holders of Boston and Maine Railroad
Unassented Bonds

THERE remain about $10,000,000 of bonds which have not yet assented to the Plan of Exchange. Since we have met practically no objection to the terms of the Plan, and since failure of the Plan would cause a decline in the market value of the bonds, we can assume only that most of these bonds are now in the hands of speculators who hope to obtain some special advantage by withholding assent.

The Railroad has repeatedly been asked what can or will be done about unassented bonds if the Plan is consummated without their assent. The holders of some of these bonds apparently hope that the Plan cannot be consummated without retiring their bonds.

We wish to emphasize that the Railroad is under absolutely no compulsion, legal or otherwise, to retire any of these bonds prior to their maturity. No bonds will be purchased in order to effectuate the Plan. If the Plan is consummated without the assent of those bondholders, their unmatured bonds will simply remain outstanding.

Unassented bonds will lose the right to share in the cash distribution under the Plan which is now expected to be $300 per $1,000 bond and will not participate in the sinking fund on the new bonds. If the Plan is consummated, the Railroad will make application to list all bonds issued under the Plan and to delist all unassented bonds.

Further, as interest matures on any unassented bonds the Railroad has the right, it is advised, to delay payment without danger of default under the mortgage.

While such action would be disagreeable to bondholders, it would, we believe, be entirely justified, since we do not feel that we owe any consideration to speculators who seriously endanger successful consummation of the Plan by attempting to obtain some special advantage for themselves at the expense of the vast majority of bondholders who have supported the Plan.

We again urge all holders of unassented bonds to assent at the earliest possible date and in any event before June 9th, since by that date the Railroad must decide whether to (1) abandon the Plan and file a petition in Bankruptcy (2) declare the Plan operative as of June 13th in the hope that sufficient additional assents may be obtained to permit it to be consummated or (3) extend the period in which the Plan can be declared operative and thereby give assented bondholders the right to withdraw their assents.

FIFTH COLUMN LEADERS FACING EXECUTION IN ENGLAND

Police Clamp Nazi Followers in Tower

By FRED PERKINS

So now it looks as if England, too, had peeked under the bed for a Fifth Column burglar—and had found two or three of them, not only under the bed but in it also.

Under arrest in London, with possible execution in the Tower legally possible for them, if not immediately probable, are leaders of three groups deemed inimical to Democratic government and the Allied cause in the present war.

First seized of the higher-ups believed to be working in England for the Nazi cause was Capt. Archibald H. Ramsay, Conservative member of Parliament. He was held on a newly authorized complaint charging him with "suspicion of action prejudicial to the State."

The British Parliament has just enacted a statute dooming persons convicted on this count to death as spies or traitors.

The statute gives sweeping, almost dictatorial powers to Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

GRIM PURPOSE

Evidence of the grim purpose and the scope of the new law was promptly furnished by arrest of Britain's No. 1 Fascist, Sir Oswald Mosley, out and out supporter of Hitler policies and head of the pro-Nazi British Union.

FAILED—Accused of attempting to organize an "Irish Legion" of British prisoners of war in Germany, Sir Roger Casement was executed as a traitor in the Tower of London during the first World War. Will suspected "fifth columnists" of today suffer the same fate?

ITALIAN SPY SUSPECT—Alleged to be the chief of Italian spies in French Djibouti, a man identified as M. Merlin, is brought to Marseilles, France, to be tried . . . and here (second right), is escarted from a ship by French officers.

Time was when Sir Oswald and his ilk, with quiet backing in quarters reported as high as the famous, wealthy Clivedon Set, which feted Col. Lindbergh, seemed able to defy police and British federal agents equally.

But Mosley, for all of his supposed financial and social connections, was in the London clink today.

So, too, was John Becket, former Labor Member of Parliament. British agents, who seized him quietly, made it clear that they did not believe he represented the Labor party's attitude toward the war.

Just what conniving was to be charged to Becket remained a military-political secret.

Less uncertainty, by far, surrounded the arrest of Sir Oswald Mosley.

He's been asking for it, figuratively speaking, for many a month and many a year.

Sir Oswald appears to be the personification of the type of citizen enemy a liberal, constitutional, Democratic government will tolerate in its citadel until a situation grows so perilous that foes within, like foes without, can expect no further mercy or privilege.

LENIENCY FATAL

Maybe there's a lesson for Uncle Sam in the now-revealed story of how Mosley and his Fascist British Union Party took advantage of their supposedly 100 per cent loyal British status to propagandize for the very Hitler blood-and-terror dictatorship which is now threatening the civilization built up through 2000 years of Christian human progress.

Authorities here in the United States are inclined to be as lenient as possible toward what we like to call "soap box" attackers of our social-governmental system.

But none of these has ever dared to go as far under the Democratic aegis of free speech as openly and brazenly to extol the Nazi conquer-and-let-die philosophy.

Yet Sir Oswald Mosley, by approving Italian Fascism rather than its twin governmental tyranny, German Nazism, long appeared to have won himself immunity from British prosecution

NOW IN CUSTODY

There was scant doubt in any British mind as to where Sir Oswald stood.

Sir Oswald was all in favor, vociferously in favor, of a Der Fuehrer-will-change-things-after-the-conquest policy.

With their headquarters near the House of Parliament, Mosley blackshirts had only themselves to blame if raiding police found their printed matter and mimeographed copy highly dangerous contraband.

While he was cogitating over the jam he finally let himself into, Sir Oswald apparently decided his best role was one of passive unresistance.

Anyhow, he was under cover today in what his fellow Fascists like to call "protective custody."

It's interesting to note, in view of present developments, the fact that Sir Oswald's wife, Lady Diana Mosley, is the sister of blonde, plump Unity Valkerie Freeman Mitford, characterized by Adolf Hitler as his "ideal type of Nordic beauty."

Unity came—or was brought—home to England not many months ago suffering from a mysterious bullet wound which she insisted stoutly was not self inflicted.

Both Unity and her sister, Diana, had been occasional guests of the Nazi Fuehrer.

What happened at Munich, at a Hitler party, was popularly supposed to have led to Unity Valkerie Freeman Mitford's "unfortunate accident."

She came home to England under most mysterious circumstances, evidently still enamored of Nazism, if not of the Nazi No. 1 Man.

Laconic bulletins from the British war office failed to indicate today that any repressive step had been taken against Miss Unity.

But the conclusion was inescapable, nevertheless, that the British were cleaning up at last, intending to leave no working space for a treacherous Fifth Column to hit them from the rear.

EMERGENCY FELT

Measure of the emergency England felt herself facing was the stringency of the self-protective measures England was taking today.

Sir Oswald Mosley belongs to the baronetcy of England, and the title he inherited goes back to 1781.

Born in 1896, he was educated as one to the manor born.

He served valiantly in France for three years with the 16 Lancers, a dismounted cavalry regiment, and in 1918 was transferred to the Royal Flying Corps. He returned to London with the rank of captain.

He went into politics immediately after the first World War, turning from his original Conservative allegience to Socialism first, then Fascism.

He has been successively involved in riots, court action and protest demonstrations against the British government policy in the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Unity Valkerie Freeman Mitford, for her part, is one of six daughters of tall, aristocratic, silvery-haired Lord Redesdale of Redesdale, thus far a nobleman of unchallengable loyalty to the British crown and to the British conception of Democratic government.

Yet Lord Redesdale said when Unity Valkerie was brought home to England:

"I am not ashamed of anything my daughter has done in Germany."

WORLD WAR HERO

Her father, mentioned in dispatches during World War No. 1 for gallantry in action against the Germans in France and in Belgium, wrote the London Times:

"My only crime, if it be a crime, is that I was one of many thousands in this country who thought our best interests would be served by a friendly understanding with Germany. In this, though I am now proved wrong, I was at any rate in good company."

Arrest of Ramsay, the Conservative Member of Parliament, was reported to have resulted from his presidency of the "Right Club," an allegedly pro-Fascist organization.

Whatever accounts of his seizure were allowed to pass through the censor's hands made no reference to other members of his group either escaping or being taken into custody.

The cable dispatches did say, however, that a number of Sir Oswald Mosley's followers were arrested after search of the Black Shirt offices in London.

Seizure of Ramsay today recalled the arrest and exposure during the First World War of Ignatius Trebisch-Lincoln, one-time member of the British Parliament.

He was taken in custody in the United States on British request. He was quoted as admitting he had been an international spy for many years.

BUDDHIST ABBOT

Always of a profound but variable religious frame of mind, he embraced Buddhism, became an abbot and announced shortly after the beginning of the present European conflict:

"Unless governments of belligerent nations resign office at once, Thibetan Buddhist supreme masters will eliminate them. This final appeal for peace, if ignored, will cause the masters to unchain forces and powers whose very existence are unknown and against whose operations European leaders are consequently helpless."

Less happy a parallel for Fifth Column suspects to ponder on was that furnished by the World War No. 1 fate of Sir Roger Casement, executed in the Tower of London.

Casement, according to the records, sought to organize an "Irish Legion" in Germany, enlisting his soldiers from the ranks of captured British prisoners of war.

It was the alleged dream of Casement and the German high command to take a rebuilt Irish army, uniformed an emerald green, across the English channel, possibly by U-boat, and land them in Ireland to fight their way to the English border.

Trouble was, in the first place, captured British prisoners, Irish or not, refused almost unanimously to wear the green uniform of disloyalty to the flag of the empire upon which the sun, there is now, set reluctantly at all.

CASEMENT SHOT

Then Casement, trying to land a German shipment of arms in Ireland was seized by the British.

After a trial that attracted world-wide attention, he was executed to death. He met his fate bravely.

In the war of a generation ago, there were many equally courageous men and women, including the famous Hans Lodi, who accepted Fifth Column spy work as a patriotic but unwelcome duty—and paid the penalty with their lives.

Treachery, espionage, sabotage—the "new" German weapons of this war may be ESCAPED DEATH—One of few to escape the fate of a captured spy was Ignatius Trebisch-Lincoln, one-time member of Parliament. Arrested in America on British request, he admitted being an international spy for years. Later, he joined a lamastery in Tibet.

25 YEARS AGO . . . AT LODI TRIAL—Having accepted Fifth Column spy work as a patriotic but unwanted duty, Hans Lodi was one of many men and women who gave their lives for Germany in the first World War. Here, Lodi is pictured at his trial in London. He was found guilty, shot to death.

THE MAINE judges who are opening trials and hearings with ceremonies honoring the American Flag are setting a commendable example for the rest of New England to follow.

As judicial sessions begin in Lewiston, Auburn, Belfast, Livermore Falls and other patriotic communities of the Pine Tree State, the bailiff or crier addresses all persons present and says:

"All stand, please, and face the flag of our country, which is the emblem of our constitutional form of government."

LEWISTON, ME., COURT OPENS WITH FLAG RITE
Judge Harris M. Isaacson Adopts Patriotic Ceremony

Thus everybody, prosecution and defense alike, is reminded that the judge is an instrument of justice—not the mockery that has dethroned justice in totalitarian countries, but the real and unadulterated justice of the United States of America.

Everybody is encouraged to know that his rights will be respected and protected in accordance with the guarantees clearly set forth in the Constitution.

The man who sues may be understandably angry at the man whose words or actions make necessary his appearance in court.

And the man who is sued may feel a similar lack of affection for the man who brings him before the judge.

But, facing their flag, the gentlemen can stand together not as enemies, but as free Americans sharing a common tradition and heritage.

A judicial session so begun cannot fail to be a better and certainly a more impressively American session.

It is sincerely to be hoped that all courts in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut will adopt the flag rite in the immediate future.

For years persons have risen in all these States as a gesture of respect when judges entered courtrooms.

And, having risen, persons have gazed at anything and everything, from a fly speck on the ceiling to the soles of the defendant's shoes or the wrinkle in the stocking of the woman across the aisle.

What, therefore, is wrong in asking men, women and children to look reverently upon their flag—the flag that keeps them from sharing the sad fate of millions of people in the war-ravaged nations abroad?

We are sure that every judge who views the flag ceremony in this light will adopt it.

We are equally sure that most judges will not wait to be asked to adopt it.

As Americans who truly desire this great country of ours to remain American they will initiate the procedure of their own accord.

We cannot imagine any judge's refusing to co-operate in a patriotic movement of this kind.

This is not the time for one judge to wait for another and probably more energetic judge to act.

The town, one of the nation's oldest, contributed much to early America.

John Adams, second President, was a Braintree citizen. So were John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Sylvanus Thayer, father of West Point.

But this is not an occasion devoted wholly to recalling a glorious past.

Braintree, really 300 years YOUNG, is looking optimistically AHEAD and hoping for a substantial rise in its industry and business.

The elaborate program which will continue through Sunday takes proper account of this and is therefore doubly interesting.

On the Side

By E. V. DURLING

A CHAIN IS only as strong as its weakest link. That advice is 3000 years old. Yet we now know there was a weak link in the allegedly impregnable Maginot Line . . . Have you something to sell to women, sir? Are you familiar with following fancy statistics? In the United States there are about 20,000,000 women between the ages of 18 and 30. And about 18,000,000 women between the ages of 40 and 55. For every dollar the 18-30 group spends on charm, clothes and other things the 40-55 group spends five dollars.

IF YOU MUST drink says an eminent medico dilute your liquor in a high ball which is much less damaging than a cocktail . . . Annette Kellerman was the first American woman to wear a one-piece bathing suit. And when Annette appeared on a beach in Boston thus attired she was arrested for indecent exposure . . . Said Gertrude Bailey: "A woman does not expect a man to understand a hat but she hopes he will notice it. It is the failure of a new hat to bring forth any comment that drives a woman to greater extremes in millinery." So, Mister, if you want to save yourself money don't fail to notice the little lady's new hat.

A YOUNG HUSBAND expresses himself as not pleased with his wife "smearing her face with grease" before retiring. This is mentioned as part of our campaign to make the world a better place for husbands to live in. Another husband says: "I wish every time I start to play another round of golf or want to dance the rhumba at a night club my wife wouldn't say: 'Remember, darling, you're not as young as you used to be.'"

THE NOT-SO-IMPREGNABLE MAGINOT LINE
Breaking It Recalls 3000-Year-Old Advice, Durling Says

WHAT DO YOU suggest for punishment for the government official who grafts on defense appropriations? Hanging, of course, would be too good . . . Single feminine client suggests an annual "Old Maids' Day." Not a bad idea. But do not care for designation "Old Maid." Prefer "Bachelor Girls' Day." Or "Feminine Free Lancers' Day" . . . Why should a sandwich always be part of a light lunch? I like to figure out lunches without sandwiches. A favorite is vegetable soup, oysters on the half shell, cherry pie and coffee.

STALIN is responsible for starting the war. Hitler had the war urge but wouldn't have risked it if confronted with possibility of two front fighting. So "Spider" Stalin invited Adolf the Fly to step into his parlor. After a war a country is a soft touch for Communism. So Stalin wants to see every country at war except his own. The Soviet Press says the United States will soon be at war. That is wishful thinking . . . Confirmation of Stalin's idea as aforementioned is found in Soviet President Kalinin's recent statement: "The time for world revolution approaches. The Soviet must be ready for all eventualities."

MY DAY

ARTHURDALE, W. Va., May 24—Just before coming into Elkins, we stopped at the camp for underprivileged children which I had heard about before, but never had had an opportunity to visit.

It is one of the best examples I have seen of what co-operation between various agencies can accomplish. Once it was a CCC camp and two buildings were added to serve as schoolrooms, built by WPA and NYA combined, I think.

All the workers are paid by WPA, which results in a complicated schedule. However, the staff works in two shifts and is so planned that in spite of WPA layoffs, there are no gaps in the children's care and life goes on smoothly from week to week.

The state public assistance pays for the food, part of which is furnished by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation. The cost per child is about 26 cents per day, and every child gets a quart of milk daily and a well balanced diet.

The camp is now run winter and summer. The children look remarkably healthy. They are being inured to a certain amount of the discomforts to be found in the neighboring rural homes, but the essentials of decent living are all here and there is evidently a spirit of co-operation among all the workers and real happiness in the children.

THE COUNTY provides three teachers and school is held here through the eighth grade. A county worker is in charge of finding foster homes for the children and they are carefully watched.

Some of the children have been in the camp as long as four years, but the average stay is a few months.

In all the time the camp has been running, there has never been an epidemic.

Tygart Valley, which we reached at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, has improved tremendously. When I was there last, they had no school and no industry. Now they have both.

The school is a modern compact building and will serve their purpose admirably.

The factory also is a modern building and extremely well run and they hope by the end of the year to have all their workers trained to the proper speed for economical production.

This homestead seems to me like one of the best I have seen. There were about 23 boys and girls in the graduating class, and they were such nice looking youngsters.

This is not yet a full high school, so they could only graduate from the ninth grade, but next year they hope to have a tenth grade.

The news which came over our little portable radio from England Wednesday afternoon was interesting.

When a nation voluntarily sets up the kind of self-discipline that is implied in the control over industry and private wealth, as well as the supervision of every citizen's activity, it shows a willingness to give for the sake of preserving what it happens to believe.

AMBASSADOR COMES HOME ALONE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 24—Ambassador Steinhardt, who is on the high seas now on his way back from Russia, is traveling alone. His wife and daughter still are in Moscow . . . Billy Rose changed his mind about closing the Barbary Coast at the Fair pending revisions. It will remain open while the changes are made . . . John O'Hara and Clifford Odets are planning to team their talents in a new play . . . Clare Boothe did not return to New York on the Clipper. She prefers to remain in Paris.

REVENGE: Mary Raye and Naldi, the dance team, went to the World's Fair and watched the small trained monkey cavorting at Frank Buck's exhibit . . . Naldi leaned over the rail, and the monkey seemed to whisper something into his ear . . . "What did the monkey say?" asked Miss Raye . . . "He said, her partner informed, "that Lew Lehr is de cwaziest peepul.'"

CLARE BOOTHE

PLIGHT: Mort Stevens, who signed for the "Romeo and Juliet" show believing that he would play many roles, found himself reduced to a very minor part . . . An old colleague asked him: "Mort, how big is your part?" . . . "Well," Stevens confessed, "I have more lines in my face than in the play."

PURCHASE: William Saroyan walked into a book store and inspected the counter on which the cheaper books were displayed. He bought two of them—"How to Dance the Quadrille Without an Instructor," and "Dream Book, 10c" . . . The proprietor suggested that he purchase the other Dream Book, which was priced 30c . . . "Oh, no," Saroyan explained, "That's for the more sophisticated type of dreamer."

DEPARTURE: Fred F. Finklehoffe, the author of "Brother Rat," will return to New York as soon as his current writing assignment is completed in Hollywood . . . "I've just got to get out of here," Finklehoffe insisted. "I knew it was time to leave when, in these times, I went to Chasen's restaurant and saw three Pulitzer Prize winners peacefully playing backgammon."

PATIENT: Moss Hart wrote to Alexander Woollcott, who is recuperating in Vermont, and asked whether Woollcott would like him to come up. "Yes, even you," Alex replied. "I'm just that desperate" . . . Harold Guinzburg, of Viking Press, also wrote to Woollcott asking whether it's all right for him to play games. "Yes, it's all right for me to play Cribbage," said Woollcott, "but the doctor says, for my health's sake I must win."

"WHERE'S ELVIRA?" WAS A PARAPHRASE of the old American Legion convention-cry, "Where's Elmer?" sounding along the Rialto today . . . The regulars of the nightclub route were taunting Jack Marshard, mentor to a thousand musicians and entertainers . . . "Elvira" is the talented Elvira Rios, who, it is hoped, will help open the Sheraton Roof tonight . . . At midnight, Miss Rios was 36 hours overdue in Boston . . And as Mr. Marshard arranged the booking, his vulnerability to the "rib" on Elvira's whereabouts is obvious.

WHETHER ELVIRA APPEARS or remains thoroughly lost, the Sheraton's debut is not expected to suffer from loss of attendance . . . But to hear Manager Marshard tell it, it would be a serious situation if the missing lady had been introduced professionally to Boston . . . She is marvellous. Mr. Marshard says, and the folks would miss her. In a brief but startling career, Miss Rios conquered New York in a brief engagement at Le Martinique . . . Mr. Marshard saw the girl—who is a singer, by the way—and he was captivated . . . By dint of perfect salesmanship, Mr. Marshard sold the services of Miss Rios to Spencer L. Sawyer, boss of the Sheraton . . . Mr. Sawyer hired her on the Marshard recommendation alone

ALL HANDS WERE EXPECTING Miss Rios today . . . But so have they been since Wednesday . . The situation was not too serious until the hour appointed yesterday for the girl vocalist's rehearsals with Johnny Cole's band . . . There'll still be time for rehearsals, however, as the Cole-gians are on a standby schedule until the opening hour . . . Mr. Marshard replied to the query "Where's Elvira?" put to him at The Beachcomber at 12:10 a. m., that she'd be here—he hoped.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The odds-makers say that there is no local wagering on (a) the American League pennant race, and (b) the Armstrong-Zanelli fight tonight . . . But Zanelli money was sure to show in minor batches today, the boys believe . . . "Brass Monkey Night" at the Cocoanut Grove (Tuesday next) is creating more than a local stir . . . One of the national picture magazines will announce its decision today—to "cover" or not . . . But the newsreels have made reservations for camera-space already . . . Two attendants from the veteran race-horse's barn will watch "The Monkey" while he ringsides . . . But if a rider is hired to walk the horse around the dance-floor, it will be a real race-rider from the jockey colony at Suffolk Downs.

THE THREE HEATWAVES WERE MENTIONED too skimpily here yesterday . . . They are new, as busy as the Ritz Brothers, and fully as entertaining. The Mayfair will hold them over . . . That Monte Proser's Beachcomber has sniped at the patronage of every major nightspot in town cannot be questioned . . . The place has been a riot since it opened May 13 . . . The "13" in

COLUMBIA BUYS BIRTH FILM

By Louella O. Parsons

Pare Lorentz

HOLLYWOOD, May 24 — Never has a sociological picture attracted such sensational attention as the birth film "The Fight for Life." So it is news indeed, my friends, to learn that Columbia has bought it for national release. New York critics broke their typewriters telling of the great poignant drama of Pare Lorentz' production—and the First Lady, herself, deemed it one of the greatest educational features ever filmed. The story is entirely concerned with the valiant fight made by young doctors and nurses to keep down the birth mortality rate in the slums of New York.

One publication went so far as to say that prospective mothers and young married women should not see it—because actual births are shown. But this brought violent protest from masses of women who claim the terrific background scoring of the picture which records heartbeats of both mothers and babies during delivery is not too much for them to take. One thing Columbia can bank on is that they have a picture on their hands that will attract controversial comments

TWO-MINUTE STORY

DOROTHY stood at the corner waiting. Soon began the tap-tap-tap of one toe and then of the other on the hard pavement. It wasn't the first time she had stood tapping, and she supposed it wouldn't be the last.

Looking at her watch she decided he was already a bit later than he had ever been before.

"WHY CAN'T he get here on time just once?" she said to herself. Or, rather, she thought she had.

"Cheer up sister, they always come eventually!" And Dorothy turned to see just who could be answering her thoughts. For of course it never had occurred to her that she was speaking aloud.

Then she glanced down the street. At last Tim was coming. "Perhaps he needs just a bit of competition," thought Dorothy.

Although making conversation with strangers was not a habit with her, she smiled her prettiest, and addressing the handsome, well-dressed young man said, "How do you know they do come eventually?"

"Well, I've seen you waiting on that corner several times while I've been waiting for my girl."

"Are you expecting her soon?" asked Dorothy.

"She should have been here 20 minutes ago. Oh, here she comes now." And with a mischievous twinkle in his eye he said, "Please do me a favor, will you? Make believe you and I are old friends. Smile and look interested when she gets within hearing distance, and say something like: 'Well, I'm so sorry to say good-bye, Freddie, as it was so nice meeting you again.' Promise?"

Promise? A broad smile broke on Dorothy's face. "I was just about to ask the same favor of you."

She extended a gracious hand to the man whose name was Freddie.

A moment later Tim joined her.

FRIDAY NIGHT was movie night again. Dorothy came at the appointed time as usual. But she didn't have to wait, for there at the corner stood Tim.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

HE DIED the other day. At 60. Very suddenly; heart attack.

He must have known one ghastly instant of shock and regret before he went. For he'd always wanted to Do Something Big. And now he was going out without accomplishing anything.

I remember, when we were youngsters, how he used to boast of what he was going to do. To my admiring, younger eyes, those boasts seemed very real and wonderful. But now, looking back, I see how childish they were. Just fizz—no firm plan, no definite desire. Just a vague wish for power and glorification.

PERHAPS that's why his whole life went for nothing. He wanted something. He wanted some great thing so fiercely that he let everything else go by. But he never knew exactly what he wanted.

Maybe that's why so many of our lives amount to nothing. We, also, want something. Expect something. Believe that Life will come around, some day, with a glittering fate on a silver platter.

But what is it we want? Well, we don't exactly know. Maybe we'd like to be lawyers. Or actresses. Or doctors. Or congressmen. Or writers. Or adventurers. Or career women. We're not quite sure. We don't think we need to be sure. We're sure that Fate will send our destiny our way. And so we wait—and wait—and wait.

And some day we die, shocked and resentful because our lives have amounted to nothing, believing Fate has done us dirt.

STOP THINKING that way right now! Fate does not make our destinies. We mold them by our own determination. If you "don't know what you want" why should Life? Life will give you only what you want—and work at.

IF YOU CAN'T MAKE UP YOUR OWN MIND ABOUT YOURSELF WHY SHOULD ANYONE ELSE DO IT FOR YOU?

You get what you go after in this world. And unless you do go after something you're out of luck. Study the discontented people you know . . . the unsuccessful people . . . the people who "fizzle out without getting anywhere." Why didn't they get anywhere?

NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN IT WAS BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T KNOW WHERE THEY WANTED TO GO . . WHERE THEY WANTED TO GET.

Your answer to this puzzle, together with your solutions to the five other Rebus Puzzles appearing from Mon., May 20, to Sat., May 25, inclusive, must be brought or mailed to the Rebus Editor, Boston Record-American, P. O. Box 2058, before Midnight, Sat., June 1, together with 10c in coin. In return for remittance, 6 contestants will receive a special set of puzzles at the close of the contest.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, Feb. 12, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solutions of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged. To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person by entering this contest agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the contestant.

State of Maine

★ SPECIAL EDITION ★

State of Maine
Executive Department
Augusta

LEWIS O. BARROWS
GOVERNOR

Ernest Hoftyzer, Advertising Director
Daily Record-Evening American
5 Winthrop Square
Boston, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Hoftyzer:

Knowing of your interest and the interest of your publications in the general promotion of New England, may I at this time commend your efforts toward publicizing Maine and her industrial, recreational and agricultural interests.

Maine prides herself in her diversified industries, and in her agricultural advancement is seeking always new markets for these products, as well as the products of forests, fisheries and factories.

In devoting a special supplement to Maine it is only natural to expect that the progressive message of the Pine Tree State will be carried to interested readers in many sections of the New England States and beyond.

Maine is alert to the possibilities of Maine industries, and to the advantages which Maine offers to potential industries. Thriving communities have been built around our manufacturing plants in many sections and are today bristling with activity.

Generously endowed with natural scenic attractions, Maine is preparing for one of the busiest years, recreationally, yet experienced. To this end hotel and camp operators, in cooperation with the Maine Development Commission, are expected to give new thought to the advertising field and the presentation of their welcome to vacation seekers everywhere in the United States.

As Chief Executive of the State of Maine, may I, through the medium of your columns, compliment the leaders of Maine industry for their initiative: bring to the attention of prospective businesses the unlimited advantages which Maine offers; and also convey to the peoples of our land an invitation to visit with us in the summer months ahead, confident that they will find that Maine is ideal as a place to live, work or play.

Very truly yours,

Lewis O. Barrows

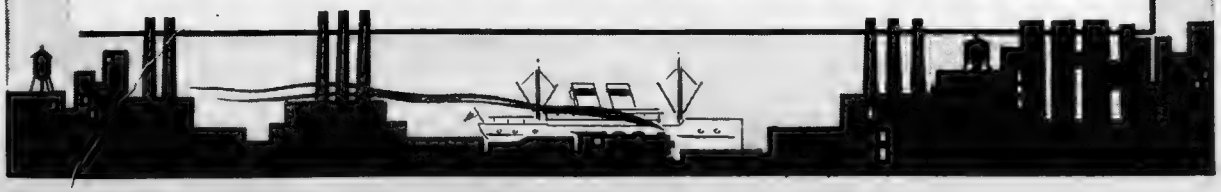
LOB/mcw

FOR recreational possibilities—for business opportunities—Maine is unique in the East. Blessed with broad stretches of fertile farmlands—enjoying the abundant water power given by its many rivers—Maine offers unrivalled agricultural and industrial possibilities. Low overhead costs, cheap water power and favorable labor conditions have made the Pine Tree State the home of hundreds of bustling, thriving communities and cities. Natural fertility of the soil has made it a land of profitable farms and center of America's potato industry.

Recreationally, Maine stands supreme. Its natives and its hundreds of thousands of visitors enjoy America's finest beaches and surf-bathing. Myriad lakes call the fisherman and boating enthusiast. Fine golf clubs dot the countryside. Excellent hotels, inns and tourist camps offer New England's most reasonable prices. Hunting in the fall—all the winter sports leave nothing to be desired. Alert Chambers of Commerce direct tremendous traffic to the beautiful spots of New England's most beautiful state, over the nation's finest highways.

FOR BUSINESS OR FOR PLEASURE—COME TO MAINE!



FINE FOOD FEATURED IN MAINE

One of the many reasons for Maine's popularity as a vacation land is the excellence of the food that is obtainable from one end of the state to the other.

Eating, to a person on vacation in Maine, is a serious matter. Appetites are sharpened by the invigorating atmosphere and outdoor exercise. Food must be delicious, wholesome, plentiful and well prepared.

Maine, of course, is famed for its typical New England dishes, many of which are prepared in the same manner that prevailed during early Colonial times.

Most popular of all Maine meals is the Maine shore dinner. Many persons travel hundreds of miles in the summer time to partake of one of these traditional Maine repasts.

FRESHNESS AND CARE

A Maine shore dinner, like all other New England meals, has attained its reputation by reasons of two things: freshness of ingredients and care in preparation.

No other food demands absolute freshness to be at its best as does seafood. There is no substitute for a lobster hauled dripping from the cool waters of the Maine coast. Clams should be served, to be at their best, only a matter of minutes after they have been dug from the clean, sandy beaches.

STEAMED CLAMS

A lobster stew made with milk, plenty of lobster meat and melted butter floating on top.

Although a shore dinner is one of the most famed of Maine meals, it is by no means the only one worthy of note. Other Maine dishes, too numerous to mention, are to be found on menus from one end of the state to the other. For example, a pan of brook trout or a salmon, caught by the angler and cooked Maine style, is an experience in eating long to be remembered.

When Maine corn is "in season," the visitor to the state learns how good corn-on-the-cob really can be. Blueberry pie, made from fresh Maine berries, is another gastronomic treat.

Beauty Vistas Dot Pine Tree State

The impression one gets in visiting Maine for the first time is its amazing diversity of scenery. Every hour, almost every minute, on the road brings new and different vistas of beauty.

A visitor entering the state on U. S. Route One at Kittery finds from there to Portland, about 60 miles away, mile after mile of magnificent ocean beaches, picturesque resort towns and historic old villages.

MAGNIFICENT Maine autumn scenes such as this await the growing number of persons who have chosen the glorious autumn months as the ideal time in which to take a vacation.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING EXCITING

Surprising as it may seem, many persons who hesitate to walk more than a block in the city are confirmed hikers and mountain climbers when they are on vacation in Maine.

No one is quite sure why this should be so. Perhaps the novelty of locomotion captures the vacationer or perhaps he is determined to cram a year's walking into the vacation period.

In any case, it is to be doubted that any place in the country offers more opportunities to the hiker than Maine.

Recently over 1800 miles of little used back roads, woods trails and country lanes have been marked and set aside for the use of hikers and horseback riders exclusively.

This network of roads penetrates to every section of the state and takes the hiker or horseback rider far from the dangers of traffic.

Protection From Fires Large Asset

The force of the Maine Forest Service is being organized for the forthcoming fire season, which usually reaches its heighth in Maine the last of May and during the month of June. This is the transition period when the green growth is coming forth and the leaves and litter of the previous year are still on the ground in a very dry condition. The forest area of Maine comprises 16,000,000 acres, which is about 80 per cent of the area of the state.

To handle this work the department will place in the field 36 chief wardens, 56 patrolmen, and 94 forest fire lookout watchmen who will be on duty throughout the spring, summer, and fall. Subject to the call of these men are 350 deputy fire wardens who are ready to drop their regular work and rush to protect the forests.

For the past month a large crew of men have been engaged in overhauling fire fighting equipment which comprises, in addition to an airplane, motor boats, and canoes with outboard motors, gasoline pumps, axes, mattocks, shovels, etc. The department maintains over 2500 miles of telephone line through the woods of Maine. Each mile of this must be examined. The lookout towers which the department maintains must all be put in order for the watchmen who will occupy them. Some of these towers are located at elevations of more than 4000 feet and are subject to extremes of temperature and storms.

The biggest asset of the department is the support of the people who travel in the woods of Maine. If it was not for their care with fire while traveling through the forests and their co-operation in extinguishing fires which do arise, the story of forest protection in Maine would be very different.

Commission Predicts New Tourist Record

A greater number of vacation seekers will be "trending to Maine" this year than ever before in the history of this exceedingly popular recreational region, the Maine Development Commission has predicted.

The state-maintained Commission, it has been pointed out, is not given to rash forecasts. During the past five years its pre-season predictions have never shown an error of over two per cent.

There are several reasons given why Maine is expected to even exceed its popularity of past years.

In the first place, the Commission believes, there will be a great eastward trend of travel this year on account of the New York World's Fair. Many persons, particularly in the middle west, who have never visited this section of the country are planning on long "once in a life-time" vacations this year that will enable them to visit the Fair and, later, to tour historic New England and especially Maine.

VISITORS FROM FAIR

Advance bookings have shown that many of these visitors will travel to the Fair by the most direct route and will return by way of Maine and the Canadian provinces, a round trip that will avert the monotony of traveling the same route twice and one that will not add much more mileage to the speedometer.

Another reason, aside from sightseeing, is given why Maine is expecting many Fair visitors. It is pointed out that those who "take in" the Fair and participate for awhile in its atmosphere of excitement and gaiety will, after they have seen it all, want to relax and regain lost energy before returning home. Maine, with its cool summer climate and its varied opportunities for outdoor enjoyment, will appeal to thousands of these visitors.

While the Fair will, undoubtedly, bring thousands of persons to New England who have never visited the section previously, it is believed by the Maine Development Commission that the Pine Tree State is headed for a record recreational year in any case.

It is explained that the popularity of Maine as a vacationland has been on the uptrend for the past ten years and that no "ceiling" is in sight yet. Last year, for example, Maine was one of the few vacation regions in the country that was virtually unaffected by the decline in business that affected the recreational industry.

RESULTS OF ADVERTISING

Aside from the state's natural advantages, the commission points to two reasons for its popularity as a vacation center. First, it has said, Maine has been one of the most consistent advertisers of its recreational advantages during the past decade. Second, the citizens of the state are recreation conscious and are continually developing the natural assets of the region so that visitors may find new and improved facilities for enjoyment.

Today it is the boast of the state that the visitor can "pick the kind of vacation he wants and he will find it in Maine." If the vacationer wants to "rough it," he can find plenty of elbow room in the vast woodland in the northern and far eastern parts of the state, where he can either hike for days without seeing anyone or can travel for weeks by canoe over the forest waterways.

SMART SOCIAL LIFE

At the other extreme, the person who enjoys social life will find things to his liking in the lake country or along the coast. There he will find smart resort hotels and lodges where the accent is on social activities.

In between, Maine offers every other sort of vacation imaginable. The visitor can seek a quiet spot and just "rusticate" or he can engage in a round of feverish activity.

Although about a million persons will visit Maine this year, the Maine Development Commission pointed out that there is "no danger" of the state becoming overcrowded. Maine is almost as large as all the other New England states combined and can accommodate many times the number of visitors who will visit the "Land of Remembered Vacations" this year.

Excellent Paved Roads Available

No matter where he goes in Maine the tourist will find the most excellent paved roads and clean, comfortable accommodations at prices that he can afford to pay.

This being so, the visitor can tour Maine and end his visit feeling rested and refreshed and well repaid for having spent his vacation amid such varied and beautiful surroundings.

MOUNTAINS, lakes, forests and farmlands—these are some of the scenic gems that await the tourist in Maine.

BRING along your golf clubs when you go to Maine this summer. Scores of excellent golf courses throughout the state offer the golfer the opportunity to enjoy his sport under ideal conditions.

GOLF? THERE ARE 100 COURSES TO PLAY ON

When you go to Maine on your vacation this year don't forget to take along your golf clubs!

It may seem to be stretching a point to say that Maine has the best golf courses in the world but a close check will reveal that such a statement is not far from the truth.

Maine's rolling terrain is perfect for ideal courses.

In all, there are almost a hundred courses in the state. Understandably enough, most of them are located in the resort areas, where they are easily available to summer visitors.

In general, Maine golf courses are owned and operated in one of three ways.

Many hotels or sporting camps have their own magnificent courses for the entertainment of their guests. These courses are right on the hotel property so that the golfer tees off only a few steps from the front porch.

Several resort regions maintain what may be described as co-operative courses. They are operated for the convenience of the guests of a number of hotels or camps in the locality.

Others are at country clubs maintained by the residents of a city or town.

At all of these courses the summer visitor is heartily welcomed.

A highlight of any summer season at a resort hotel or camp is the frequent tournaments among guests — highly informal affairs where winning is not so important as having a good time.

In addition, there are more than 30 tournaments throughout the state that are open to all amateurs where the serious golfer may test his skill against that of his fellow enthusasts.

Maine Vacation Won't Tax Even a Slim Pocketbook

Of primary importance in the planning of a vacation is cost. Nearly every family has a vacation budget that is fairly inflexible. The utmost must be obtained for every dollar spent.

For the person with no restrictions as to the amount of money that may be paid out for a vacation or for the one who is limited to a small outlay, Maine is an ideal choice as a vacationland.

In Maine the visitor can spend as much, or as little, as he wishes and will be assured of getting his money's worth and something to spare.

There is no profiteering among establishments catering to the vacation trade. Prices are kept within reason at all times and under all conditions.

For those who like resort hotel life, Maine has hundreds of these establishments both along the coast and inland.

Patrons at these fine places may spend the vacation period quietly or may take part in the continuous round of activities that are provided.

The so-called sporting camp, found mostly in the lake regions, is a Maine innovation and one that is tremendously popular with thousands of vacationers.

Maine also has many famous little inns, found mostly in its picturesque villages, where rest and quiet amid extremely pleasant surroundings await the visitor.

DIVERSITY OF WATER SPORTS

By far the great majority of people on vacation choose a resort "near the water." Water sports of all descriptions seem to have a peculiar fascination for most vacationists.

Maine has 2500 lakes and twice as many rivers and streams. Together they form a vast network that extends from one end of the state to the other. Indeed, one-eleventh of the total area of the state is composed of water.

With summer breezes drifting down from the encompassing hills, small sail craft of every description afford enjoyable vacation hours on Maine lakes.

Playhouses Add Zest to Summer Life

When a person is on vacation the accent, of course, is on fun and enjoyment. A vacation is a period of release, a time when clocks and schedules are, for the time being, thrown into the discard.

For the first few days, however, the person on vacation is too tired when evening comes to want to do anything but go to bed.

After this period of becoming adjusted to his vacation, though, a person finds himself growing restless in the evening if there is nothing to do.

This demand for "something to do evenings" has resulted in the building up of a gay night life in many Maine resort regions.

Of primary interest to Maine visitors are the summer theaters. Maine summer theaters are not just places where rank amateurs go through their unaccustomed paces.

Rather, they are theaters that boast of actors and actresses that are topnotchers of the American stage and screen.

At Lakewood, the theatergoer gets a thrill that is not soon forgotten. Here, in the intimacy of a beautiful little theater, he gets a closeup of stars fresh from Broadway successes or movie actors or actresses sojourning at the colony between pictures.

Later, he may sit next to these stage or screen leaders at dinner or pass the time of day with them as they stroll through the little community.

Outdoor Sports Can Be Yours

Seeing that a guest has a good time is the major concern of every good host. Maine is a host on a grand scale; a host to something like a million persons each year.

Peeping this vast number of guests happy and entertained while they are in the state is a gargantuan task and one that takes the undivided attention of hundreds of people.

Maine hotels, camps and the state itself are well aware of the modern sports trend and have left no stones unturned to provide adequate facilities for the enjoyment of every outdor sport imaginable.

Beaches Main Charm Of Maine Coastline

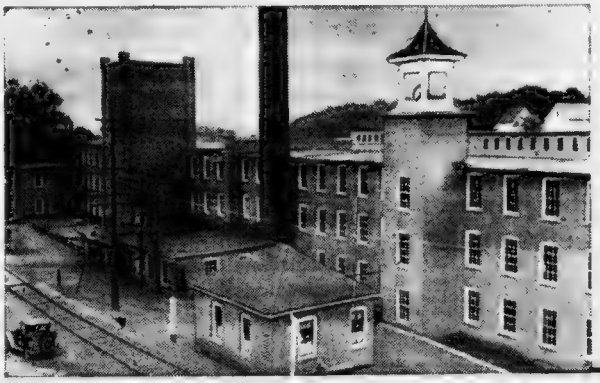
Beginning at Kittery, at the entrance to the state, and continuing almost to Portland, the visitor finds mile after mile of smooth, hard-packed, glistening sandy beaches that attract thousands of vacationers each year.

Between Kittery and Portland there are, incredible thought it may seem, over 50 miles of ocean beaches.

THIS VACANT PLANT is in Southern Maine—15 miles from Portland harbor facilities. 24-hour freight to New York. Trucking service to principal Eastern markets.

LOCATED in a fine little Maine village 50 miles from Portland, this modern plant is within easy reach of Boston, New York and all important Eastern markets.



THIS WOOLEN PLANT is completely equipped with 3 sets of cards, 42 broadlooms, 3500 spindles, and dyeing and finishing facilities. Railroad siding 140 miles from Portland.

MAINE ENCOURAGES INDUSTRY!

The friendly State of Maine is the ideal place for the location of industry. Here there is no State income tax, no sales tax, no machinery tax, no corporation tax. There is an ample supply of friendly, intelligent labor and abundant economical power. Look over these splendid opportunities. Maine's Sea, Lake Fishing Offers Rare Sport for Waltons

A recent survey has disclosed that approximately 12,000,000 persons in the United States are anglers of a greater or lesser degree of proficiency.

This wholesale participation makes angling one of the most popular of modern day sports.

About half of the total number of fishermen prefer fresh water fishing. The others have shown a preference for ocean, or salt water angling.

WELL REWARDED

To many hundreds of thousands of anglers, however, there is no place where the angler is so well rewarded as in Maine.

About one-eleventh of the total area of Maine is composed of water. There are 2500 lakes and ponds, 5000 rivers and streams in the state. It is generally known among experts that the clear, cool waters of these waterways are ideal for the propagation and growth of game fish.

Fresh water game fish abundant in virtually every region in Maine include salmon, trout, togue, small-mouthed black bass, pickerel and perch.

Fishing begins in Maine on the first day of April and continues until the last of September. Thus the angler has plenty of time to enjoy his sport.

During recent years more and more attention has been accorded salt water fishing. As a result, thousands on thousands of anglers flock to the Maine coast every year to do battle with the teeming fish life of the region.

TUNA EXCELLENT

During the last few years it has been discovered that tuna fishing off the Maine coast is unexcelled in the entire world.

Giant schools of this premier game fish cavort off shore all summer long and, with the recent awakening of interest in this grand phase of angling, hundreds of near record fish are taken each year.

Bailey Island, Ogunquitt, Kennebunkport, Portland Harbor and Boothbay Harbor are, at present, focal points for tuna fishermen. At these places anglers find plenty of boats equipped for tuna fishermen and manned by Maine men who thoroughly understand the sport and who know where the fish are apt to be at any given time.

In addition to rod and reel fishing, tuna are often taken in Maine by harpooning, many preferring this method of landing the giant so-called horse mackerel.

SPORT WITH MACKEREL

Another phase of fishing that has gained tremendous popularity during recent years is trolling for mackerel with rod and reel.

These fish weighing up to five pounds each, put up an exciting battle and when a boat is in the middle of a school of them the action is fast and furious.

Boats along the entire coast will be found to take out parties of mackerel fishermen. Too, daily trips fro mmany Maine harbors take out anglers on trips where handlining for cod, haddock and pollock are the attractions.

Many have the impression that one must be proficient at the sport to enjoy fishing. Nothing could be farther from the fact. Each year thousands who have never fished before become inoculated with the angling fever and have as good a time as the experts.

Surprising, too, is the fact that during the past few years almost as many women as men have taken up angling.

Whether the preference is for fresh or salt water fishing, the angler who comes to Maine will not only find plenty of fish but he will also find equipment and accommodations to be of a high degree of excellence.

SCENERY LURES TOURISTS

While many persons prefer to spend the entire vacation period in one place others get the most enjoyment out of touring from one place to another, stopping where night overtakes them and, in general, forgetting such things as schedules in a reversion to a sort of gypsy existence.

Boating Plays Large Part in Recreation

With the majority of Maine resort hotels and sporting camps near the water, it is easy to see why boating plays such a prominent part in the vacation life of the state.

On the coast, those who own craft of any description already know, of course, of the unexcelled yachting opportunities that the Maine coast offers.

A TYPICAL summer scene on a Maine lake. Hundreds of thousands of persons will vacation this year on Maine's 2500 lakes and ponds amid scenes like this.

WHETHER TO FISH or TO FEAST

When you think of the sea, or of sea foods, you naturally think of Maine. For nowhere in the wide world are more delicious sea foods to be found than in the deep, cold waters of the North Atlantic, off the Coast of Maine, where abound dozens of delicacies to delight the sea food epicure.

are but a few of the delicious Maine sea foods that are available, canned or fresh, in restaurants or markets wherever you live. So, for the next best thing to a real Maine Shore Dinner, insist, when you order, on sea food from the State of Maine.

IS IT SALT WATER FISHING YOU WANT?

Then come to Maine—the fishing grounds beyond compare—2486 miles of coastline virtually alive with all manner of salt water fish, ready to take your lure:

GIANT TUNA ATLANTIC SALMON HALIBUT

Married Man Her Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

This affair of mine is getting me down. My father and I live together. My mother died several years ago, and I'm nearly crazy with things as they are going.

My fiance, with whom I've been going for over a year, is married but separated from his wife. My father doesn't approve of him, and won't even speak to him. He says that my fiance ought to get a divorce, but he won't, saying he can't afford one now. And therefore, my father won't even let him come into our house.

He loves me and I love him, so what can we do? I'm almost 18 years old, and the young man is 24. How can I stop this everlasting arguing and nagging at home?

PUZZLED.

My dear, I hate to appear as one thing more in the odds against you, but I find myself in sympathy with your father. No married man has any business going with a girl. It's unfair to everyone concerned, particularly to a girl of your tender age—18.

Since he can't afford a divorce, he should wait until he can. And I can't understand why you want to marry a man whose first marriage has been a failure. Why did it fail? Whose fault was it? You have the whole world before you; don't barter your precious youth in an affair of this kind, I beg of you. Be sensible. Look at this thing from the outside, and good luck to you.

MORE NEW ENGLANDERS AT HOT SPRINGS

Meat Pies to Hostess' Aid

By MARTHA LEE

MEAT PIES make an ideal main course for spring and summer dinners. Practically a meal in themselves, meat pies offer variety to the hostess who strives for this quality, and also admirably takes care of the left-over problem.

Chicken, lamb, beef, or veal can be used in a pie, and either biscuit dough or a layer of mashed potatoes can form the "lid." Chef Diat of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York city, prefers baking powder biscuit dough, which he arranges in puffs on top of the meat and vegetable filling.

Here is his original recipe for chicken pie, which you can try out in your very own kitchen. You should win as many plaudits with yours as he does with his.

CHICKEN PIE

1 fowl (4 lbs.) cut in pieces
1 onion, sliced
1shallot, chopped
Chopped parsley
4 hard-boiled egg yolks
¼ cup butter
1 tbsp. vinegar
3 tbsp. flour
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced
Salt and pepper.

Cook fowl in hot water until tender; remove from stock and separate meat from bones. Add onion, shallot, parsley, and vinegar to stock and simmer for ½ hour. Strain. Saute mushrooms in butter for five minutes, stirring frequently; stir in flour; add two cups stock. Gradually cook until thickened, and season to taste. Add chicken, bring to a boil and turn into a buttered casserole. Cover with egg yolks which have been rubbed through a sieve, and arrange rounds of baking powder biscuit dough on top. Bake in hot oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Now may we add some suggestions of our own for tasty meat pies.

MEAT PIE

3 tbsp. butter or bacon fat
3 sliced onion
½ cup sliced mushrooms
3 tbsp. flour.
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup milk
1 cup stock or 1 bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
2 cups diced cooked meat
1 cup diced cooked vegetables
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ recipe baking powder biscuits

Melt butter or bacon fat, add sliced onion and mushrooms, and cook 3 minutes. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper, and when well blended, add milk and stock slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils. Add meat, vegetables, and Worcestershire sauce and pour in greased 1½-quart casserole. Cover with biscuit dough on top of mixture. Bake in hot oven (425 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes, until crust is brown. Makes 6 servings.

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. shortening
¾ cup milk (about)

Sift and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until the consistency of coarse cornmeal. Stir in milk to make a smooth dough. Turn out on slightly floured board, knead ½ minute and roll lightly to thickness of ½ inch. Cut in 2-inch rounds with floured cutter. Bake on ungreased sheet in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 24 to 36 biscuits.

WE HAVE it on good authority that a new lipstick contains a large amount of the spice that pretty girls are made of . . . this is the "sweet" angle on the two new make-ups Arline Gould describes today.

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU NEEDN'T lack for the right expression of your make-up personality . . . not with two diametrically opposite sets of lip, cheek and complexion tint brought out at once, both equally high style! One is elusively feminine, and that's the sweet of it . . . the other is challengingly vivid, and that's the hot of it!

They're called the Hot and Sweet make-ups . . . and you couldn't do better than own both of them. With dark, moss cool linens (watch their return for both town and spectator sports) you'd want the brilliant "red flare" or Hot make-up. With flower pastels, the "peppermint pink," so very sweet, is the only thing!

"You'll have a chance to "sample" both in their regular sizes, for $2.50 worth of the make-up, approximately, is packed up for $1.95 . . . in realistic giant firecrackers for the "flare red" and in cellophane covered peppermint stick packages for the sweet "pink." The lipstick alone in each is $1. In it you'll find a big box of an incredibly silken and fine face powder, and there are many shades from which to chose the right one for you, dry or cream rouge and the lipstick.

Both colors are in the bright, clear red category . . . one with a subtle, bluish undertone without a trace of orange.

Both colors are in the bright, clear red category . . . one with a definite cool Peppermint pink has a subtle, bluish undertone without a trace of orange.

If you'd like to learn all about this chance to "sample" in regular sizes two striking new make-ups, one Hot and one Sweet . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ALICE MATHEA LEE and Albert Pratt have been studying wind and weather reports all week, for after their marriage this afternoon they plan to set sail for a honeymoon aboard the bridegroom's yacht . . .

Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Halfdan Lee of Brookline, is being given in marriage by her father at the 4:30 ceremony in Emmanuel Church, followed by a reception at the Lee residence . . . Her gown of antique ivory satin is clouded by a tulle veil held in place by orange blossoms, and her bouquet is of white orchids and lilies of the valley . . .

Yellow and white is the color scheme for the bridesmaids' costumes . . . white net dresses enhanced by yellow velvet sashes, turbans of yellow flowers with moss green veils and arm bouquets of yellow tulips . . . In the group are Helen McIntosh of Milwaukee, maid of honor, Phyllis Howe, Nancy Peabody, Katharine Jackson, Margaret Mason, Beatrice Talbot, Mrs. Henry N. Pratt, all local girls; Virginia Sherwood of New York and Mary Cooper of Pittsburgh . . .

Fay and Carol Pratt of Dover, the little flower girls, are wearing ivory net dresses with moss green velvet sashes and carrying lilies of the valley . . . Dr. Henry Pratt, brother of the bridegroom, is the best man . . .

The wedding climaxes a whirl of parties for the bridal couple . . . Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jackson gave a rehearsal dinner last evening and Mrs. Dudley R. Howe entertained the bridesmaids at luncheon today . . .

Sheraton Room Benefit for Hospital

SOCIETY put one over and the weather man last evening and enjoyed rooftop dancing in spite of the cold drizzly rain . . . The Sheraton Roof opened for the summer with a special dinner dance to benefit the Corey Hill Hospital . . . The party was really a two-ring circus with two orchestras, one on the roof and another in the ballroom downstairs, and the elevator shuttled guests up and down so they could sample dancing in both places . . . Needless to say the roof was enclosed with colorful awnings and heaters were temporarily installed to make it cosy . . .

Baroness Von Nidda, a tireless worker for the success of the party, and Baron Von Nidda, presided over a table of guests including Nancy Holdsworth, Mrs. James E. Thayer, Nat Saltonstall and Jack Watson . . . Mr. and Mrs. John O'Day had a family party to applaud for Dottie who took part in the fashion show between the main course and dessert . . . With them were debutante Mary, Walter Whitehead, Jr., Jean Cullen, Sanford Chapin and Charles Mulcahy . . . Jean was very festive with white orchids tucked in her hair and Mrs. O'Day wore a pale blue taffeta gown with a full skirt fashioned of bands of blue, violet and pale green taffeta . . . Vincent Lamb chatted merrily between dances with Dorothy Bartol. Mrs. Stanley Whipple attended, her daughter, Anne, being a model in the fashion show.

NATHALIE WARREN TO WED HARVARD SENIOR

Joining the ranks of [illegible] is Miss Nathalie Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Alvin Warren of Mt. Vernon st., Boston, who announced her engagement to John Gurd McCulloch, a senior at Harvard Business School.

The future bride is a graduate of the Brimmer and Fiske Schools. Mr. McCulloch, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCulloch of Mount Vernon, New York, prepared for college at Choate School, Wallingford, Ct., and graduated from Princeton in 1938. He is a member of Princeton's Colonial Club.

Party Honors Horse Judges

Mr. Homer Gray, M. F. H. of the Rumbout Fox Hounds, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will make a return engagement as judge at the Bedford Country and Polo Clubs Memorial Day Horse Show.

Together with the other prominent judges he will be guest of honor at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. William Rayne before the Horse Show Ball, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Robert Almy's old fashioned coach will again serve as a reviewing stand from which the judges can get a birdseye view of the obstacle course. The judges will also include Carl Hanel, polo coach and teacher of horsemanship at Smithmore, and Howard C. Lee, Canadian cavalry officer who has been in charge [illegible] International Polo matches on Long Island.

VISITED BY STORK

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Downey of Westwood are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, May 18, at Faulkner Hospital. The infant's mother is the former Betty Soule, daughter of Mrs. Horace H. Soule of Brookline and Duxbury.

Smart Set Fashions

Avoid These for Charm

By ANNICE BRINK

IT'S A FINE thing to gather grist from fashion's mill and pause on news about the really important happenings . . . but it's finer to lend an ear for a moment to a man who says some very revealing things about the way American women are apt to counteract their feminine chic by some unfortunate "blind spots."

He is Erno Laszlo, a noted cosmeticologist, and has had plenty of opportunity to compare the Continental with the American woman.

It's the same story, but with new angles, about the "average American woman could be the most attractive, best groomed and most alluring in the world. IF—" And those "ifs" are habitual and glaring mistakes in charm and deportment which cut down her score below that of the less pretty but wiser European.

Don't blow cigarette smoke through the nostrils—it's completely unfeminine and nothing to admire.

Don't make the bold gesture of clinging to a man's arm as you walk along the street. No need to show possessiveness, and it [illegible] look [illegible] silly.

Don't throw to the winds your knowledge of what particular type you are, and make a mouth in lipstick that is totally and obviously unrelated to your own. It's your own mouth, not Joannie Crawford's that interests the man you're with . . . the cut-of-bounds lipstick looks grotesque and fools nobody.

Crooked heels on shoes detract the most beautiful legs. (This is not news, but neither is man's interest in perfection in female [illegible] deportment.)

Leaguer Plans Bridal

Of interest to Boston society is announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Eurthard Carroll of Brooklyn, N. Y., to Charles Benjamin Podmaniczky [illegible] of Mrs. Guy Warren Walker of Boston and the late B. F. [illegible] Podmaniczky of Budapest.

The future bride, daughter of Mrs. Otis Swan Carroll and the late Mr. Carroll, is a [illegible] of the Buthham School and Smith College, 1937, and belongs to the Junior League, Hospital Committee, the Smith Club. Her [illegible] father, Nathan Bordman, was twice consul general to Switzerland.

Mr. Podmaniczky, [illegible] one of Boston's most [illegible] women, was educated in Budapest and at the Lawrence Park. He resides with his mother on Bommer st. and belongs to the White Mountain Ski Patrol.

Sterling Acting On Twin Screens

By DON WARD

Warner Brothers' annals of the poor may be simple enough but they are definitely not brief, as a glance back over the records show. And now comes their latest on the unpossible list—"Saturday's Children.' This third remake of Maxwell Anderson's tragi-comedy is now [illegible] unreeling on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

Saturday's Children," a gem in a homey setting, gives you an X-ray peek into the lives of a group of small-time office help who get off such daring wisecracks as "I take that from whence it came" and "I'm going to the washroom—pardon my frankness."

The brothers Epstein, Julius J. and Philip G., who did the screen play, thought these up, but it's the way Dennie Moore, playing a girl from the 5-and-10-cent store, says them that gives flavor to this colloquial Manhattanese.

John Garfield, acting a romantic and pan, is another rewarding note in this chronicle of the underprivileged, carrying on as if he had soundly created this thrice-played character. Anne Shirley, as his pretty better half, gives a substance and poignancy to the role. Another bow goes to Leo Patrick, Anne's cheap, tricky sister, and there's one, too, for Roscoe Karns, playing the latter's hen-pecked husband.

Claude Rains gives another of his sympathetic, patient father performances which misses a gold star only because the script has rewritten Playwright Anderson's ending.

"King of the Lumberjacks," featuring John Payne, Gloria Dickson and Stanley Fields, also on the twin screens. This is an adventure story with high blonde-pressure.

Hollywood Notes

—By LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

HOLLYWOOD, May 24—Did you know that West Point was originated by George Washington and that it wasn't established without a bitter fight?

I didn't until today, when I was on the 20th Century-Fox lot and they told me that the history of West Point, "School for Soldiers," by Marvin Wall, will be filmed with Tyrone Power and Walter Brennan in the leads.

Lou Edelman, who made so many of those service pictures for Warners, has now joined Darryl Zanuck's unit and will produce the West Point epic as his first. He and Jason Joy left today to try to make a tie-up with the government to film the picture at West Point, believing that now is the time for this type of patriotic picture.

I have always said—and I say it again—there is no young character actress in Hollywood who can out-act Claire Trevor in the

Now Paramount has signed her for a typical Trevor role in "Silver Queen," a story that deals with a western mining town with a girl who bosses the gambling and financial interests—played, of course, by Claire. Allan Dwan, one of our better directors, has been signed to direct her and the picture is slated for early production.

Starting Monday this column will be written for a few weeks by Harriet Parsons, who is known to many of my readers as Parsons, Junior. She will tell you all the news and gossip of Hollywood, and you'll probably like her column as well you won't even miss me.

I'll be back in a few weeks, however, after a holiday in Honolulu, where my favorite doctor and I are going to take a much needed rest. If anything new happens in Honolulu, you may be sure I'll cable it.

BOSTON AFTER DARK

the opening-date, incidentally, was not accidental . . . Tom Maren opened his famous Dinty Moore's on the 13th (of January, 1935) . . . He re-opened it after closing for the summer that first dubious year on the 13th of September . . . The fact that the expensive Maren venture, The Commons, opened also on a 13th inst., doesn't count . . . Out of The Commons' failure—came The Beachcomber.

THE PUBLIC'S YEARNING for novelty has been exemplified twice this active spring of 1940 . . . When Lou Edelman, who made so many of those service pictures for Warners, has now joined Darryl Zanuck's unit and will produce the West Point epic as his first. He and Jason Joy left today to try to make a tie-up with the government to film the picture at West Point, believing that now is the time for this type of patriotic picture.

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD the nightclub which had the most national renown was the famous Trocadero, known for brevity as "The Troc" . . . It was the place to go, and the management could afford to be haughty on the subject of alloting choice tables . . . Of course the tourists and the garden variety of outlander unconnected with the shimmering movie industry were relegated to rear tables . . . "The Troc" went under the hammer Monday, and the furnishings which cost $250,000 went, in dribs and drabs, for $25,000, or ten cents on the dollar . . . The silken ropes which according to Variety were "once a Magnet line to hold back the common people, cost $100 apiece and were raffled for $2.2[illegible]" . . . "This was less," continues Variety, "than half of what Joe Public used to hand to a waiter for the privilege of being insulted in a swank dump. . . . The epitaph which Variety reads on the Trocadero also qualifies as a picturesque and shrewd observation . . . "A dead night club, like last year's straw hat, is a hunk of junk."

Theater Guild Buys 'Battle of Angels'

The Theater Guild announces the purchase of a new play, "Battle of Angels," by Tennessee Williams. It is a modern drama with the Mississippi delta a background.

Orson Welles Backs Group

John Houseman, Orson Welles and Herman J. Mankiewicz announce in Hollywood the formation of United Productions.

Including some of the same elements which founded New York's famous Mercury Theater, United Productions will present for Pacific Coast runs five new productions a year, originating in Hollywood, where much of the country's finest theatrical talent—acting, directorial and technical—is concentrated.

The Mercury Theater will operate in partnership with the new producing firm, furnishing it with two productions a season, directed and produced by Orson Welles.

Loew's Classic Human, Simple

By PEGGY DOYLE

Producer Sol Lesser said last night that even if his United Artists release, "Our Town," should prove a boxoffice dud he'll still be proud to have made this picture.

After you've seen this film version of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize play on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, you'll agree, for here is a film classic that should outlive most of the season's screen best-sellers.

Miraculously, the simplicity and restraint that characterized the play have been retained and no Hollywood speed-up has been permitted to alter its jogging tempo. Hence, there is that unhurried quality of life going on in Grover's Corners that gives drama to the smallest happenings.

Except for the more hopeful ending, the original story has been closely adhered to and the film version may safely be said to compare favorably with the stage play. For us, who was one of the play's earliest and most enthusiastic prees agents, the play comes first as a work of art, notably in those heartbreaking scenes at the soda-fountain when Emily and George first know they love each other, and in the church just before their wedding ceremony.

Frank Craven and Martha Scott, who created the narrator and the Emily Gibbs roles for the stage, play these same parts in the film version, and brilliantly. Craven's philosophical commentator maintains the film's homely, intimate quality excellently. Miss Scott, a New England "straw hat" product, portrays the girl with warmth and sincerity, revealing an impressive range for so young an actress in the character's growth from adolescence to maturity.

William Holden is excellent as the boy. So are Fay Bainter as his mother and Beulah Bondi as Emily's mother. Thomas Mitchell's overworked Dr. Gibbs and Guy Kibbee's enterprising Editor Webb are both well conceived portrayals.

Thornton, Craven and Harry Chandlee have prepared the fine script, which departs from the stage play in the final sequence. After Emily apparently dies in childbirth and joins the village's dead in the hilltop graveyard, it is made clear that this was really a nightmare experience, that she survives. This was obviously a necessary concession to the subway trade—this department prefers the tragic ending.

As for Sam Wood's direction and Merl Glennon's photography, they are up to the high standard of this Sol Lesser screen standout.

FRANK CRAVEN repeats his stage success in the screen version of "Our Town," now at Loew's State and Orpheum.

'Lillian Russell' Elaborate Film

Title Role Alice Faye's Best

By PEGGY DOYLE

Those lush, leisurely days when bombs connoted Bustanoby's, not Blenheims, and Coal Oil Johnnies preferred their brendafrasiers pleasingly plump live again on the Met screen.

The picture is "Lillian Russell," Darryl Zanuck's latest cinematic cutback to days agone when the famed American beauty was synonymous with the Gay Nineties. Twentieth Century-Fox haven't spared the horses. They give this Mauve Decade valentine "the works" in the way of a most opulent handsomely mounted production.

Nor have they skimped on the celebrities of the day. They are all here—that fabulous vulgarian, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Jesse Lewisohn, Edward Solomon, Alexander Moore, Tony Pastor, Leopold Damrosch, the senior Eddie Foy, Gilbert and Sullivan and, best of all, vaudeville's hilarious German senators, Weber and Fields.

It is true they have shorted Miss Russell on husbands. She had four and they give her two—Edward Solomon, who is shown as a frustrated composer whose marriage to her is terminated by death and not divorce, and Alexander Moore, Pittsburgh publisher and ambassador to Spain, who actually married her when she was 51.

William Anthony Maguire's script has the lovely Lillian meeting Moore as a slim youth when she, the teen-age Helen Leonard, was first setting out on a spectacular career. Always, at climactic moments in her life, he reappears, never mentioning his love for her until her soft-spoken urgings overcome his diffidence.

For those who go back to Lillian Russell's day or who are at all acquainted with her biography, it should be a bit difficult to accept Fonda in the Moore role. The rest will be won by his persuasive charm.

Miss Faye's Lillian Russell, although she has been generously padded, pompadoured and beplumed, also fails to make the weight of the Nineties' Glamour-Girl No. 1. But she's a match for her vocally and, although she cannot be said honestly to have recreated Lillian Russel'l, she does turn in a satisfactory performance. It is her best, in fact. She does nice things with "After the Ball Is Over" as well as "The Band Played On" and "Brighten the Corner."

Nor should "Diamond Jim" Arnold, Grandma Helen Westley and Ernest Truex, as Lillian's father and long-suffering husband of a militant suffragette, be overlooked.

The co-feature, "The Biscuit Eater," based on the James Street story about hunting dogs, programs young Billy Lee, but "Promise," a pointer, wins stardom.

Leap Year

By Charles McGuirk

YEH, February 29th fell on Thursday. It was a pretty nice day for that February. It was one of the five days in the month that it wasn't raining, snowing, sleeting, hailing or blowing. The sun wasn't out full. But enough of it showed so you knew there still was a sun, a thing you might easily have forgotten any time since Christmas.

The Cast of Characters in "Leap Year"

JOHNNY, who is rather shy, but not dumb — not in the slightest.

Isabelle Lewis woke up that morning and threw back the covers of her bed and bounced out on the floor. She ran to the window, pushed it shut, turned on the radiator and bounced back into bed again, shivering. She pulled the covers over her head and shook the bed a little while and when she stopped shivering, she peeked out over the covers and saw that the sun was darn near out.

Well, she thought, this is my birthday and I am a pretty big girl to be five years old. She giggled and tried to imagine a five-year-old girl being as well developed as she was. She would attract a lot of attention, all right. They might even put her in a side-show and the spieler would say:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, step this way and see Isabelle Lewis. She is only five years old but you can see that she has all the beautiful curves and roundnesses of a mature and ripened woman. Gaze upon her beautiful blonde hair. Note the deep blue eyes and the little turned up nose. See the full-lipped mouth, budding with the promise of womanhood. Now, look at her body. Remember! This child is only five years old. Yet you can see—Well, she is wearing a bathing suit, and, enough said. Step this way, Ladies and Gentlemen. The price is only two bits. One quartah of a dollah. You can tell your grandchildren that you saw Isabelle Lewis when she was only five and already had all the——"

FINE BIRTHDAYS

Of course, it was all a joke, one that she had been hearing ever since she was able to understand anything. Today, she really was 20 years old but if you counted her age by birthdays, she was only five because she had been born on the 29th of February, 1920, and there had been only five February Twenty-nines ever since. Leap Year, you know.

So she was 20, or five, whichever you preferred, and this was Leap Year, when any girl could ask any boy to marry her and not be considered unmaidenly. There, Isabelle, thought, was a word she hadn't heard since her grandmother died six years ago. Grandma used it a lot because Isabelle was then anywhere between 12 and 15 — or three, going on four — and Grandma was giving her the inside lowdown on how ladies should act to get gentlemen to marry them.

This information was wrapped around in pious quotations from the Bible and from the most refined books. But the meat of it was, any girl can get her man, if she's a little better than half smart. However, if she isn't half smart or has some personal deformity like telling men they aren't half as bright as they think they are, she always has one extra chance.

It comes every four years and is known as Leap Year. And on February Twenty-nine of Leap Year she has a perfect right to propose to the man she likes and, sometimes but not often, he accepts her proposal. "The thing is," Grandma used to wind up these little lectures, "always remember not to say or do anything unmaidenly or forward. If you keep a man's respect, his love will follow and you won't have to wait for Leap Year and a chance to ask him to marry you because he will have asked and married you himself."

Well, she was still maidenly after working in Amalgamated Tin offices for a year now as a stenographer. She knew plenty of men and had gone out with them but she was still far from marriage. She could have had several of them.

She was only interested in one man and it didn't look as if she had a chance with him. He was Johnny Stern and he was a clerk in Amalgamated Tin. He was 24 and from Sandusky, O. He was tall and thin and good looking. But he also was modest and shy.

HE WAS DIFFERENT

She'd say for Johnny that he was different. When she was out with any of the others, there always came a moment in the evening that she wished she had been wearing armor or at least a tin vest. There were times when she had to tighten up her maidenliness into a good slap in the face and listen to that old one about, "You're so pretty that I forgot myself. I promise you, Bella, that it will never happen again." And it wouldn't. Till the next time.

She though of Johnny Stern now. What was he doing at that very moment? He probably was getting out of bed or maybe he was eating his breakfast or shaving and bathing or reading the morning newspaper. She wished that she was with him, whatever he was doing. She would like to be with him for the rest of their lives.

She wondered whether Johnny felt the same way about her as she did about him. She thought he did but she couldn't be sure. When she gave him little chances to kiss her or at least to look as if he'd like to, he just stared at her, kind of scared, and talked about something else or merely let the moment pass.

It made her so angry that she played up to other men when she was sure Johnny was watching her. It made her take dates with other men and refuse the ones Johnny offered her.

Come to think of it, she was pretty sure that Johnny didn't care for her that way. Oh, she knew that he liked her as a friend or a sister. But he didn't like her and want her like she wanted him. If he did, he would have picked up some of the hints that she had dropped at times. At times? She laughed at herself. She dropped so many that if they were bombs they would have blown them both up without leaving a trace of either. But maybe he was just dumb or scared. But she dismissed that possibility. Nobody could be as dumb as that. She guessed it just wasn't to be. The realization made her feel like curling up here in the bed and bawling.

But they did have good times together, she and Johnny. It did not make any difference what they did or where they went. When they were together, everything seemed to be wonderful. They danced as though they were made for each other.

And they liked the same things. Like hot swing and phonographs. They each had their own phonographs and they often traded records. It was funny the silly things that gave you a good time when you were with the person you cared for a lot. Take yesterday, when they walked the three miles from downtown up home together —though it was cold enough to freeze the ears off an eskimo, Isabelle hadn't noticed the cold a bit. And neither had Johnny.

Maybe it was because they had found that funny little phonograph and radio store where you could make records and send them to your friends. That was wonderful. She and Johnny had sung a verse and chorus of, "Do I Love You, Do I?" and sent it to Madge Prentiss, who worked with both of them at Amalgamated Tin. It would be delivered some time today. And both she and Johnny had bought a couple of blank records to take home with them.

That was what she really had been trying to think about all the time. But she had been scared to. Because she had made a record and sent it to Johnny and he stood there wondering what she had done on it. A song, maybe. She had a nice sweet baby voice, like that Bonny Baker who was making such a hit on the radio. It was an awful lot like it. Gee, Isabelle was a swell doll! A little girl with lots of curves and that nice baby voice that always came at you with a rush and made your heart bounce against your ribs. Gee, he wished she liked him like he liked her. Sometimes, he thought, she did. But it was unlucky to think she did because every time he got that idea, she either refused a date with him or broke one she had with him to give it to another guy. Well, let's see what she had put on the record.

He brought it over to the phonograph and wound the machine and put the record on it. He stood there listening in his undershirt and pants, his head cocked on one side, his eyes eager and his whole face preparing to be wildly approving. The record scratched and buzzed as the needle bit into the unplayed part. And then Isabelle's husky baby voice said.

"Oh, Johnny, how I bet you could love! That's a song but I bet you could love grand. I have thought that for a whole year now but I could never find out from you. Johnny, do you know what date this is? It is the 29th of February. It is Leap Year, the time a girl can propose to a man without being unmaidenly. So, Johnny, I'm proposing. Would you like to marry me? If you would call me on the telephone right away. If you wouldn't, just forget it and smash this record. Please! I love you, Johnny."

"Whee!" yelled Johnny. He rushed out of the room with the one side of his face still lathered. He picked up the telephone in the lower hall and he nearly broke his fingers he worked so fast dialing Isabelle's number. He had to wait a minute and while he was waiting, he yelled, "Hey, Mrs. Borquist, I'm getting married soon to the prettiest girl in the world! Hello, Isabelle? Listen, honey—No, I don't think you're unmaidenly! Yes!"

THE END

Don't miss tomorrow's thrilling story on this page. The title is "The Hateful Hero."

"It is leap year, the time a girl can propose to a man without being unmaidenly."

she didn't know how he would take it. And if he didn't take it just right—oh, she would be humiliated! The record ought to be reaching him sometime around now. Isabelle suddenly had her face under the bedclothes and held her breath until she almost burst.

THE RECORD SPEAKS

Johnny Stern was shaving when Mrs. Borquist, the landlady knocked at his door. "Package for you," she said and handed him the flat bundle. "Thanks," Johnny said and started to undo it with one side of his face clean shaven and the other side all covered with lather. It was a phonograph record, he saw, as soon as he undid the cord. Now, who could have sent him a phonograph record? Isabelle! Sure! She and he had bought two apiece.

"What do you mean: 'COME TO OUR HOUSE'?"

When you tell your friends "come to our house," do you really mean just that? Or do you mean "come to our landlord's house that we're renting because we haven't bothered to see if we could do better by putting the rent money into a home of our own"?

All too often, people needlessly put off buying or building a home because they just don't realize "how much house" their rent dollars will buy under our modern Triple-Test Mortgage Plan. If you've seen a new home you'd like to own . . . or if you have plans and a location in mind . . . why wait longer? Come see us now.

Ask the manager of our mortgage service department, or any of our officers, to show you how so many others like yourself are buying their own homes on moderate monthly payments under our Triple-Test Mortgage Plan . . . and how you may do the same.

You'll find it easy to talk with us about home-financing . . . without cost or commitment.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

E. ROLAND HARRIMAN, millionaire railroad owner, told me at the dinner of the Grand Circuit trotting leaders at the Hotel Biltmore in Providence that he considers harness horse racing the greatest of sporting events.

"We don't have to apologize for harness horse racing any more" said the middle aged railroad king. "It has graduated out of the sissy stage, and is accepted by the public as a thrilling form of competition. It is more difficult to get a box to the Hambletonian trot for three year olds at Goshen, N. Y. than it is to secure a box for the Kentucky Derby.

"I am glad that the Grand Circuit will be back at Narragansett Park in July. I shall have my racing stable at that meeting, and will fly up from New York to take in the races."

E. ROLAND HARRIMAN

I reminded Harriman of the day he flew to the Grand Circuit races at Agawam Park, purchased a $100 win ticket on one of his horses and gave it to his pilot. When the horse won at a price of 5 to 1, the pilot was very jubilant.

"I couldn't overlook the trainer under such conditions," said Harriman with a smile. "So I presented him with the $1000 purse."

I asked Harriman how the railroad leaders looked upon the war.

"It appears as if Hitler has a more modernized army than the Allies," replied Harriman. "The way the Nazi forces have gone through some of the European countries reminds me of what happened to the Indians when the early settlers used gunpowder against bows and arrows.

"The United States should take a lesson from what is happening in Europe, and should get more planes, tanks, anti-aircraft guns and other modern defense equipment. The world moves pretty quickly today, and we must keep in step.

"I think business would pick up if the government stopped meddling with it. Improved business would mean smaller welfare rolls and fewer people on WPA projects. More important, it would mean more contented Americans. Everybody prefers work in industry at good wages to occasional employment on projects.

"Under present conditions men working on projects will often not accept jobs in private employment for fear they will lose them, and then be unable to get back on the government payroll.

"The government should take business into its confidence and not hamper it. If it does, things will move ahead in a mutual partnership between the government and business in which the country as a whole and the workers will be the real beneficiaries."

Grand Circuit Passed Up Profits

THE GRAND CIRCUIT meetings pass up profits for sports. Few Grand Circuit meetings have ever made profits. Most of them have been underwritten by wealthy sportsmen like Harriman.

Under mutuel betting at Agawam, the Grand Circuit broke even. It probably would eventually have become a paying proposition if pari-mutuel betting had not been voted out in Hampden County.

Frank Wiswell, New York attorney who acted as toastmaster, stated that Commissioner Gerry of the Rhode Island Racing Commission and Judge James E. Dooley of Narragansett Park had been very co-operative in making the Grand Circuit meeting at the Pawtucket track possible.

Greyhound, world's greatest trotter, will be among the famous standard breds to race at Narragansett Park.

Paul Bowser's Tara is the only trotter that ever defeated the speedy Greyhound. Paul later sold Tara to an Italian syndicate for

Armstrong Favored At 10-3 Over Zanelli

By JACK CONWAY

Hammering Henry Armstrong's dazzling speed and rapid fire punching should enable him to successfully defend his world's welterweight championship against Ralph Zanelli of Providence in a 15-round bout at the Garden tonight under Goodwin A. C. auspices.

Our morning line installs Armstrong a 10 to 3 favorite. At the race track we dodge odds on choices, but in the boxing game we frequently favor such heavy favorites.

It is our opinion that the price on Armstrong to win is not too great. He is a class fighter, and has always stood up when put to the test under withering ring fire.

BETTER THAN FOR JUNIOR

It will be a better conditioned Armstrong who will oppose Zanelli than the one who won from Paul Junior. In the Junior bout, Armstrong tired after a few rounds from his own exertions. He didn't train properly for the match, while he had not completely recovered from the effects of his Los Angeles tussle with Ceferino Garcia.

Armstrong would have his troubles traveling 15 rounds against a top challenger in the condition he was in against Paul Junior.

You have Eddie Miller's word for it that it will be a different story tonight. Hammering Henry is at the peak of his fighting form again and is prepared to give a brilliant exhibition of boxing and punching.

JACOBS TIES UP ZANELLI

Zanelli will enter the ring in the best condition of his career. He is getting an opportunity sought by all ring stars. If the Providence welterweight can make the grade tonight, his future is assured.

As a last minute move to protect his rights to the welterweight title, Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Club compelled Zanelli to sign a contract to meet Armstrong in a return bout in New York on June 13 if he should win tonight.

Jacobs has Armstrong signed to oppose Lew Jenkins, new lightweight boss, in a 12-round bout in New York on July 17. Mike is fearful lest Zanelli ruin his plans.

ZANELLI GETS 25 PER CENT

Zanelli's contract calls for a 25 per cent cut of the proposed return bout. It would probably draw $100,000 in New York which would give the Providence youth quite a pay day.

The eight-round semi-final will feature George Salamone of East Boston against Maurice Arnoult of France.

There will be another right between Nat Bor of Fall River and Joe Boscarino of New York.

In six rounders, Ticky Ford of Lawrence will take on Billy Tordiglione of the North End, while Herb Coonan of Rochdale will toss blows at Bill Weinberg of Chelsea.

SQUEEZE PLAY—Lefty Gomez of Yankees perches on rubbing table while Eddie Weidner, Baltimore Orioles' trainer, squeezes Lefty into a new corset. Gomez, handicapped by back injury, went to Johns Hopkins for aid, was told to stay off mound until he can pitch without laming back.

If our White Label Malt Beer is not the best beer you've ever tasted—it's pretty near it. For we brew it differently from other beers. We use choice imported hops, and fancy Malt—but no other grain! Only Malt Beers are brewed that way, and it costs us more to follow that formula.

There's only one fair way to judge—Taste and Compare!

This beer is made solely from hops and barley-malt and no other grain and is therefore a "malt" beer. This is the way fine imported beers are brewed; it is the distinction which, in popular opinion, sets Trommer's apart as a more palatable and thoroughly satisfying brew.

Cronin Plans Diet Of Portside Hurlers For Invading Yanks

By JOE CASHMAN

EN ROUTE HOME WITH THE RED SOX, May 24—Those Yankees may be buried in the cellar but nobody is going to convince Skipper Joe Cronin that his Red Sox who are now speeding home to clash with the alleged Bombers in a doubleheader tomorrow and a single game Sunday will have any walkaway.

In fact the McCarthymen had much better pitching on this first western junket than our heroes, and one never knows when those Yankee bats are going to start slicing base knocks to all corners of any ball park.

And it seems that the fans share the same wholesome respect for the Yankees as our Sox. Seats for tomorrow's twin bill are scarcer than passes to Suffolk Downs with the new turnstile plan.

EXPECT 40,000

There will be close to 40,000 on hand to see the Fenway flock still leading the American League parade and attempting to increase it at the expense of those ever-threatening Yankees.

Marse Joe is going to try the Yankees on a diet of southpaw hurling because of the success the opposition has had in feeding the champions a steady array of port siders.

"Percentage calls for using as much southpaw pitching as possible against the Yanks" chirped Boss Joe. "With Bill Dickey, Red Rolfe, Charlie Keller and George Selkirk, four left handed hitters in the regular lineup, there's little else for me to do.

"Ordinarily, you don't have to bother about percentage in playing a lowly second division ball club, but you're crazy if you figure the Yankees are as weak as their present standing indicates" concluded the Newton squire.

And for that reason he's shooting Mickey Harris after the Yankees in the first game, and will probably come up with Fritz Ostermueller in the second half of the bargain attraction. Since these two are the only port siders available except for Old Mose Grove, who is not ready.

SOX PUNCH TERRIFIC

They showed one of the most devastating batting punches ever seen on a western junket, and if the pitching had been anywhere near what a major league club should have, the Hose would have swept all five games against the western foes instead of bowing once to Detroit and once in Cleveland.

In the Detroit loss, the Hose tallied seven times and in their Cleveland loss they picked up six runs but that wasn't enough.

It is because of this that the Sox pilot is far from happy, even though his gang is on the top of the American League heap by a game and one-half. If rival clubs can come up with good pitching against the Sox, our boys figure to be in plenty of trouble.

But perhaps it's best not be too pessimistic, for the way Lou Finney, Jimmy Foxx, Doc Cramer, Teddy Williams, Jim Tabor and Bobby Doerr are coming up with base knocks, maybe we won't need much more chucking to continue right on through the campaign.

DUCKED BOB FELLER

Yesterday the boys were supposed to get a crack at Bob Feller but rain spoiled that opportunity and it's just as well after the exhibition that same Mr. Feller gave against our boys at Fenway only two weeks ago last Sunday.

The first western junket is over, and the Sox left home a game and one half on top and came home the same way—therefore, this western trip can't be called anything but successful.

Weymouth Test For Auto Pilots

Outstanding big car drivers of the East will race in the 20-lap Memorial Day classic at the Weymouth Fair Grounds track next Thursday afternoon. It will be the initial grind of the 1940 season in the Bay State for big cars.

Bob Gardner, Cohasset, New England dirt track champion, George Bouley and Bud Hardt, both of Waterbury, Ct.; Gene Trinque, Mapleville, R. I.; Fred Carpenter, Albany, N. Y.; Lee Warren, Troy, N. Y., and Ted Harley, New Britain Ct., are already entered for the classic.

Quinn Refuses to Wreck B's for $$

By BILL GRIMES

While the Bees were twiddling their thumbs for the past three days waiting for the weather man to see the light, stories have broken in New York that the Chicago Cubs are dickering for Eddie Miller and the Brooklyn Dodgers believe that they could use Slapsie Maxie West . . . Gabby Hartnett has had shortstop trouble all season . . . Somebody traded Dick Bartell to the Detroit Tigers for Billy Rogell, who has been in the major leagues for 14 years . . . Naturally, the Cicero Terror couldn't make the grade . . . Then, Bob Malnick didn't come up to expectations . . . And, Gabby is understood impression that with Eddie Mayer at short, the Cubs would win the National League pennant . . . On the other hand, the Dodgers had no less than 12 outfielders at Clearwater this spring . . . And, they were a very expensive assortment of outer gardeners, for they set the bunk which is holding the bag for the Dodgers back approximately $200,000 . . .

BILL TERRY TRAPPED

During the off-season, President Bob Quinn was offered the equivalent of $75,000 for Slapsie Maxie West . . . Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, believes that Slapsie Maxie would be sensational in the Polo Grounds . . . But, the price tags that he put on the Giants involved in the offers for West were around 200 per cent over their actual value . . . "Do you believe those players can be marketed at those prices?" asked Bob Quinn . . . Yes," replied Terry . . . "Well, all right, you sell them and then come back to me and we'll talk turkey," countered Bob Quinn . . . Terry was trapped and quit . . . Like Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, P. K. Wrigley has a very healthy bank balance and in all probability he'd be very nonchalant with the ciphers on the end of a check written in purchase of Eddie Miller . . . But, there's isn't enough ink in Chicago to get Miller on a straight cash trade.

STILL POINTS FOR FLAG

Bob Quinn wants to give Boston a winning National League club . . . He had the same dream while he was the owner of the Red Sox . . . He could have cashed in at Fenway Park by selling players but the pennant bug stopped him . . . Today Bob Quinn can write his own tickets on Eddie Miller, Max West, Chet Ross, Al Lopez and Tony Cuccinello and garner at least $200,000, at a time when he's worrying about the coming payrolls . . . But, despite the fact that the baseball fans have deserted the Bees for the Red Sox Bob Quinn is still playing fair with Mr. John Q. Baseball Public and is retaining his outstanding players . . .

Bob Quinn is one of the best judges of baseball talent in the business and he believes that within two years the Bees will be pennant contenders, for his farms are producing youngsters who'll make the National League grade.

The golfers will have a busy week end . . . Down at the United Shoe the N. E. P. G. A. amateur pro championship starts tomorrow, while Wollaston, Thorny Lea and Grand View (Wachusetts to you, and also to me) are staging open tourneys. The Wollaston tournament is a four ball affair but Grand View and Thorny Lea are handicap medal play affairs.

Les Scarsella, who was sold to the Buffalo Bisons, wants to go to the Pacific Coast League . . . His motherless child is in California with Les' folks . . . Umpire Bill Klem was in a belligerent mood when he left town yesterday . . . He'd hung around the Hotel Lenox for two days, without playing "rummie" with Bill Delaney . . . In the past, Mr. Klem had his expenses off Mr. Delaney at rummy.

Although the citizens of North Raynham reported favorably on the installation of a dog track, Oscar Horton, who is the non-salaried treasurer of the Bees, is out of the Massasoit Kennel Club . . . Horton and two other shoemen, one from Brockton and the other from North Adams, were to have financed the North Raynham dog track but Pres. W. H. Ensign and Gen.-Mgr. Russ Murray of the Massasoit Kennel Club do not require the backing of the three shoemen now, particularly in view of the fact that Horton, it is alleged, demanded a salary of $25,000 . . . And, by the way of no harm, the Information I received concerning Horton and his two shoemen partners came from a source as far from dogs as the North Pole is from Little America.

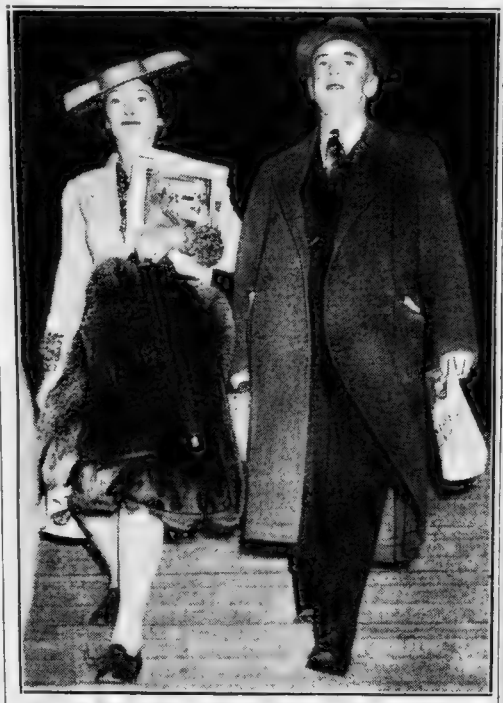
Incidentally, Col. Jim Campbell, ex-president of the Goodall Co., which sponsored the Round Robin tournament last week at Fresh Meadow, was born just outside Houston, and naturally he registered with Demaret when he called the No. 1 money winner's attention to that fact last week at Flushing . . . Henry Cuici, who was a member of the N.E.P.G.A. a few years ago, is now assistant pro to his brother Al at Fresh Meadow. Henry wishes his best regards extended to all of his New England friends . . .



OFF FOR BIG TOWN. While the Red Sox were detraining at Huntington ave. station today, the Bees were leaving Back Bay station for New York. Here are Mr. and Mrs. Casey Stengel leading Bees away. Club plays Giants there under arcs tonight.

COONAMESETT POND, IN NORTH FALMOUTH, ANGLERS' PARADISE

By DARK MONTREAL

Some dandy trout are being taken out of Coonamesett Pond, North Falmouth (spelling and trout by courtesy of the conservation department). There the state has conducted a sound stocking program that is beginning to show real results, as the accompanying picture attests.

Best catch called to my attention went into the creels, provided they were big enough, of Milton Winchester and Joseph Phillips, both of Edgemont rd., East Braintree, members of the Weymouth Sportsman's Club. They killed four brown trout, the largest 18 inches long, weighing 3 ½ pounds, smallest 2½ pounds, fishing near the outlet, using night crawlers for bait. They also caught some unusually large red perch.

Winchester, on opening day, creeled three trout out of the same pond, one a squaretail, that weighed a total of 6½.

Things have also begun to hap pen again in Long Pond, according to a note from Bill Dupree of Plymouth, who writes:

"Long gave up three walloping rainbows Monday. The largest was caught by Don Tracy of Plymouth, 5½-pound female. Two others, weighing 3½ and 4 pounds, went to a coup'e of anglers whose names I failed to get. They have been biting real good late in the day, along about 6 till dark. Better come down and we'll try them."

Dupree also sends word the first stripers have appeared at Duxbury in the cove back of the Myles Standish monument.

Asa Osborn, dean of the State's salt water and salmon anglers, is with a party of Weymouth anglers at Kempville, Nova Scotia, for 10 days, seeking to lure some of those big down-east redspots. With him are Dr. John Bastey, Dr. Warren Bastey and George Winters.

* * *

No heavy run of stripers has been reported in the state except at Martha's Vineyard where fish up to nine pounds have been plentiful. But the linesides are gradually working around and fair catches continue at the Weweantic in Marion harbor in Cape Cod Canal, and in Cohasset Narrows, with a report from Ollie Rodman's Salt Water Sportsman that one was taken at Plum Island Beach.

* * *

A note from Herb Allen at Den nysville, Me., says the first bright salmon of the Dennys river run was taken Monday by Don Phinney. This was a fresh-run, eight-pound fish that made the mistake of rising to a Jock Scott . . . Dr. John a Moran, of Springfield, sends along word of excellent trout fishing on the west branch of Farmington river near New Boston; also on Miller's river which opened to fishing only last week.

Chase Series Successful

The three-track experiment of running a series of steeplechases appears to have worked out quite successfully although the smallest crowd of the Belmont season saw the second section—the Belmont Spring Handicap—run yesterday.

John Hay Whitney's Massa was an easy winner, picking up three lengths over F. Ambrose Clark's Fay cottage in the final run for home.

Conn, Lesnevich Fight Approved

DETROIT, May 24 (AP)—State Boxing Commissioner John J. Hettche today approved contracts calling for a 15-round light heavyweight title fight here June 5 between Champion Billy Conn and Challenger Gus Lesnevich.

Hettche recently had said he would insist on a 20-round scrap, explaining that the champion was a slow starter, but at today's conference he capitulated to the claims of managers that a longer indoor bout would handicap both fighters. The bout will be at Olympia Arena.

GOING DOWN—Referee Art Donovan starts to wave Ken Overlin away from Garcia as the latter goes down in the first round, propelled by a terrific sock from his underrated foe. And—see right—

LOOKS LIKE K. O.—But it wasn't, though Garcia did go all the way down and Overlin danced, anxiously waiting a chance to finish his opponent. Garcia regained his feet, and hung on 'till the windup, though losing his title and the decision. Overlin piled up a big early lead, then managed to stave off Garcia's desperate late-round rally.

International News Photographs

Garcia to Get Another Shot At Overlin Within 3 Months

NEW YORK, May 23 (INS)—Clever Ken Overlin, ex-sailor from Washington, D. C., subdued Ceferino Garcia, Manila typhoon, winning the New York Commission version of the middleweight crown on a 15-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

After Overlin had piled up an early lead with brilliant, confusing boxing tactics, he required all his science to get through the final three rounds in which the Filipino unleashed a desperate assault that ultimately came to nothing as Ken fought him to a 15th round standstill. Overlin was awarded a unanimous verdict.

TOO CUTE FOR GARCIA

Overlin, a 13 to 5 underdog who weighed 159 pounds to Garcia's 154, met the bull-like charges of the Filipino with jabs and sidestepping that had his opponent frequently missing potential haymakers.

In the first round, Overlin belted Garcia twice to the face and Ceferino grabbed him, lost his balance and plopped to the floor, but arose quickly. Ken worked on Garcia's stomach with a left hook throughout the contest.

In the second round Garcia was unable to cope with Overlin's footwork and the Filipino's timing was off. Three-fourths through the third, Garcia connected with a jarring right uppercut to the jaw—his famed bolo punch—and Ken's knees shivered. But he recovered and soon had Garcia missing awkwardly.

Overlin's left eye was cut in the fourth. However, it was easily Ken's round as Ceferino vainly tried to follow the advice from his corner to "punch! punch!"

REMATCHED

The eighth and the ninth saw Ceferino bound forth as though he were about to rip Overlin to shreds, but the Washingtonian cooly gained control and took the heats. The tenth went to Garcia when Ken struck low, although Overlin had the best of the bruising.

Garcia, realizing his title was slipping, began heaving desperate blows in the thirteenth. He staggered Overlin with a right on the chin and Ken had to hold to travel safely through. Garcia forced the fourteenth at a blistering pace, but just when it looked as though the tired Overlin could stand no more, he would display a sudden burst of energy.

Ernie Vigh, 160¾, Newburgh, N. Y., tossed just three punches to flatten Henry Chmielewski, 160, Boston, Mass., in 33 seconds of the first round of their scheduled six-rounder. Two lefts dropped the New Englander for a six-count, and a right floored him again for three. He was up, but wobbly and helpless and the referee halted the bout.

Harvard Polo Team Duels Pittsfield

Lions' Track Team Weakest In History

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—Along Broadway today we find . . . Lawson Robertson . . . veteran Olympic track coach . . . who will take his Penn squad into the I. C. 4-A championships at Harvard for the 25th time . . . next Friday.

Coast teams have won the team title 17 times in the last 21 years . . . And in two of those years they didn't compete . . . And California's seven-man team is favored to win again . . . but may get a surprise from Pitt, N. Y. U. or Yale.

Feature will be the quarter-mile if Jim (Harvard) Lightbody starts against Jim (N.Y.U.) Herbert and Wes (Fordham) Wallace . . . and Dan (A.A.U.) Ferris says the only sure bet is that Al (Georgetown) Blozis will set a new shot-put record.

Columbia has the weakest track team in its history . . . but the strongest crew . . . and is hoping to spring an upset in the Poughkeepsie regatta . . . blue ribbon event of the rowing world.

Those husky looking lads heading for the Garden . . . are the weight lifters . . . who compete tomorrow for national titles . . . added attraction is the Mr. America contest . . . to choose the nation's "best developed and proportioned amateur athletes . . ." But why look only among the weight lifters? . . . What's the matter with some of our football and track athletes?

Can't Pay on Lost Tickets

By The Associated Press

According to an opinion of the State Attorney General received by counsel for the five New York race tracks, the racing association are not permitted to follow the usual procedure of paying claims or affidavits if a ticket has been lost or thrown away.

The Attorney General points out that the law says unpaid tickets shall be paid into the state treasury but does not mention lost or destroyed tickets, adding:

"It is inconceivable that it should be contemplated or intended that private individuals, officers or employes of the racing association should determine questions affecting public revenue."

WARREN WRIGHT BIDS FOR STAKES IN LINCOLN MEET

By EDWARD W. COCHRANE
Sports Director Hearst Newspapers, Inc.

CHICAGO, May 24—Jogging along the sports trail: Warren Wright, master of Calumet Farm in the Kentucky blue grass, has one of the largest stables at Lincoln Fields . . . Will try for all the stake races at the meeting . . . Has five entered in the Joliet Stake for two-year-olds June 8.

Two Tops, winner at Louisville, is one of the best . . . Count Morse, Easy Mon, Beau James and Star Chance, are his best stake horses stabled at Crete.

Wright will keep his stable here for Lincoln Fields and Arlington and then will ship to Saratoga . . . Herb Woolf has Technician, Joe Schenck, Unerring and some more good ones for the stake races at Matt Winn's oval . . . has fifty here . . . Charles Cleary has eight at Crete, including Flying Lil, one of the best fillies of last year.

VALDINA STABLE

E. F. Woodward, Texas oil man, brings his Valdina Stable—32 strong—with a flock of juveniles . . . have been successful in California . . . Mrs. J. F. Waters, San Francisco sportswoman, also has a large stable.

Mrs. Emil Denemark and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars are not racing at Lincoln Fields this year . . . both have their stables in the East . . . Shandon Farm has Annie Alone and One More in the Crete Handicap.

Bob McGarvey is training for Miss Henrietta Bingham, who has 11 here . . . McGarvey also has some of his own and a string belonging to T. P. Morgan from Texas.

Bert Ingwerson, capable line coach at Northwestern, says they had the best spring game the Wildcats have presented in years . . . Looks like the sophomores of last fall will give the Purple a real football team the coming season . . . Too many inexperienced men was the trouble last fall.

Bert also says Bill Decorrevont is apt to make a good major league ball player if he can hit a curve ball . . . He murders fast ball pitching . . . A lot of boys would make good major leaguers if they could hit curve ball pitching, but too many of them can't.

CONZELMAN CONFIDENT

Jim Conzelman, coach of the Cardinals, believes he will have a splendid ball club if he can be sure of a good passer and good reserve tackles . . . Jim is trying to sign up all the material the Cards got in the draft . . . If he gets 80 per cent of it, his team won't be last in the National League race.

George May, president of the Tam o' Shanter Golf Club, says they will put up a fence to keep the chiselers out when the Chicago District Golf Association's $5000 open tournament is held in July . . . Every spectator will have to dig up the price of admission.

In spite of his loss in the Withers mile, Bimelech rules favorite for the mile and a half Belmont, June 8 . . . There will be plenty of bets against him, however, as there is much doubt in the minds of race followers whether the Ed Bradley colt can go that distance . . . He didn't prove it in the Derby, the longest race he ever ran—a mile and a quarter.

If Bimelech is beaten in the Belmont, the Arlington classic will be a res open race—free-for-all for the good three-year-olds . . . also the American Derby and the Hawthorne Gold Cup.

UNJUSTIFIED BLASTS

There appears to be some criticism of Judge K. M. Landis because the commissioner of baseball asked Joe DiMaggio if he has a business manager . . . unjustified criticism . . . Judge Landis was asked to come into baseball to keep it free from anything he thinks would be bad for the game . . . that's what he has done.

He has a perfect right to inquire into the habits or personal business of a ball player if he thinks it is for the good of the game . . . if the chiefs of the majors had done that back in 1915 there might not have been a scandal in 1919.

The manager of Johnny Paychek says his fighter wants to redeem himself with the customers of boxing because of his bad showing with Joe Louis . . . in the next breath he tells of some tenth rater he wants Johnny to fight as a tryout and then after one or two more of those, would like to match him with Red Burman or some man of that type . . . the way for Paychek to redeem himself, if that is at all possible, is to fight Burman or a man as good first.

He can go somewhere besides Chicago if he wishes to tip over any stumble bums . . . undoubtedly the Illinois boxing commission will consider this seriously before sanctioning any bout with Paychek as one of the fisticuffers.

Sexto Escobar is going to retire with the featherweight title . . . As stated before in this column, the greatest fight Chicago could have right now would be Tony Zale and Ceferino Garcia . . . That would be a real championship affair, as Tony beat Al Hostka, recognized by the N. B. A. as middleweight champion, and Garcia is New York state's champion . . . It is a natural for our town.

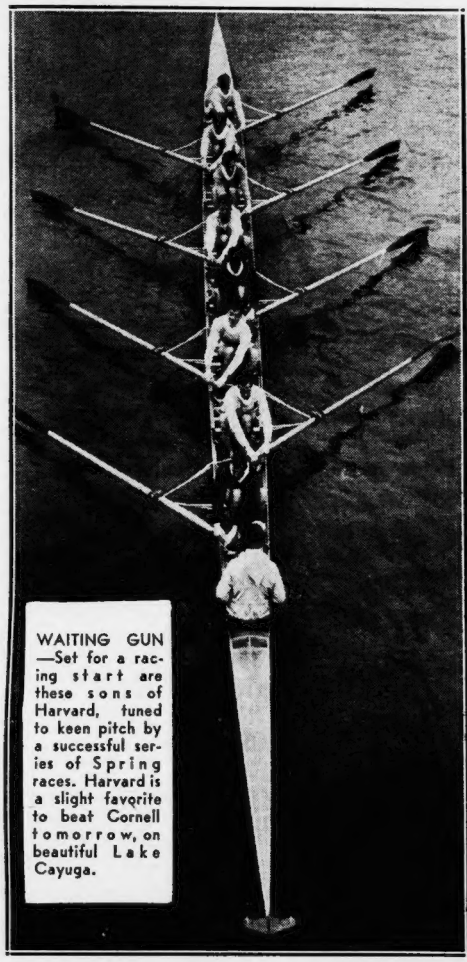
Sweeping Along to Big Red Title Test

STRIPPED FOR ACTION —Down to the Charles go the Crimson crewmen, carefully carrying their valuable new shell, which they used in the absence of their regular shell, crated for shipping to Ithaca. There Harvard hopes to settle last year's score, where the Big Red handed Tom Bolles' boys their sole defeat of the year, in a terrific storm.



WAITING GUN —Set for a racing start are these sons of Harvard, tuned to keen pitch by a successful series of Spring races. Harvard is a slight favorite to beat Cornell tomorrow, on beautiful Lake Cayuga.

OUTLINE OF ROYALTY— Harvard's unbeaten varsity crew is silhouetted carrying a brand new Pocock shell from Newell Boathouse for final workout before tomorrow's two-mile classic race with Cornell. The race, on Lake Cayuga, will settle short-distance championship of 1940.

The Harvard varsity and junior varsity crews will close their sprint seasons against Cornell and Syracuse in two-mile races on Lake Cayuga at Ithaca on Saturday.

Both the Harvard and Cornell varsities are undefeated and the race will decide the spring champion of the East.

EDDIE CARROLL, son of Dan Carroll, is rapidly moving up the ladder of success in dance, moving picture and amusement promotions . . . Eddie has taken over control of Riverside park at Agawam . . . This place consists of an outdoor movie, roller skating rink and a dance hall . . . For May 29 Eddie has signed Horace Heidt, famous orchestra leader . . . When at the Ambassador in Los Angeles last Winter, I listened to Heidt's orchestra which is one of the best in the country.

I know that Dan Carroll gets more of a thrill watching young Eddie make good than he did out of the success of the numerous top boxers he managed . . . Col. KEEP HORSES IN OWN CLASS, SAYS WILSON

By DAVE WILSON

Just what kind of form is desired in the standout horse which will carry your wager?

In addition to conforming to the standards I have laid down in the previous installments, the standout horse must:

1—Have finished in the first four in his last race.

2—Not be dropping down or moving up in class.

In confining your selection of a standout horse to those which have finished in the first four in their last race, you are certain to get a horse that is either at top form or very close to it.

You've seen races and I've seen races in which the best horse, because of racink luck, or some other factor, didn't win, but he wasn't the best horse if he wasn't somewhere near the winner.

I suggest that you avoid horses dropping down or moving up in class for a variety of reasons. You then have the problem of trying to guess whether or not the trainer is seeking to win a bet and is willing to lose the horse or whether something has happened to him so that you really know nothing about him and his relations to form of the sort you are seeking.

MOVING UP IN CLASS

For instance, if he is moving up in class he will undoubtedly be outclassed for the tendency among trainers is to run horses over their heads a little bit. They are afraid of losing them via the claiming box if they run them where they belong and they are hoping against hope that the horse will surprise them by winning in a higher bracket than they believed it possible for him to do.

Platers listed as being worth only $1000 often win at 1:12 for six furlongs in that bracket, but get beaten in 1:13 when asked to run with $2000 horses. When that happens you can put your finger on that indefinable something called class.

George Odom ran Top Row for $3500 at Narragansett Park and lost him to Bert Baroni. Odom won a race with the son of Peanuts-Too High, but Bert Baroni knew the little horse had more ability than Odom thought he had.

BARONI'S JUDGMENT

Whether or not Baroni expected the little horse to go on and beat such as Discovery and win such an event as the Santa Anita Handicap will never be known, but Baroni backed his judgment and if Top Row went beyond his expectations that was the fortune of racing and the Nevada horseman capitalized on the fact that he saw something in him that nobody else saw.

Racing is full of such stories, but go around looking for those kind of horses to bet on and you will pick more losers than you do winners and wagering becomes a gamble instead of an investment.

Rebuilt Aqueduct Used for Training

The rebuilt Aqueduct track, now a one-mile oval, is being used daily for training by horse, now racing at Belmont. The decreased size of the track has made room for an additional parking space.

The remodelling of Empire City also is about completed with new roadways built, a mutuel setup installed and a terrace constructed

Triple Play

PEORIA, Ill., May 24 (AP)—That rarity of baseball—a triple play—helped Western Illinois Teachers to a 6-to-2 victory over the Caterpillar Tractors of Peoria last night.

A line drive to the left fielder accounted for the first out. Second Baseman Eddie Willard then tagged he base runners to retire the side.

Mutuel Wagering Set for Hunts Meet

Although it isn't practical to install a "tote" for a one-day hunts meeting, mutuel wagering will be in effect at the United Hunts summer session at Roslyn, N. Y., June 15. Booths for ticket sellers and cashiers will be built and four calculators will keep up with the betting for the odds board.

Casey Trains By Sculling

Despite the poor weather during the past few days, Steve Casey has been working out in sculls on the Charles River. Earlier in the week the former heavyweight wrestling champion, who will try to regain his lost championship from The Angel at the Garden on Monday night, rowed with the Riverside Boat Club crew. Brothers Tom and Jim also pulled a mean oar in the Riverside boat. When in Ireland, the Casey brothers were champion oarsmen.

NAZIS RACE FOR CALAIS

BERLIN, May 24 (AP)—Fast-moving German armored cars driving through St. Omer this forenoon approached the "gates of Calais," authoritative German sources declared. Calais lies only 22 miles from Dover, vital channel port on the English side. St. Omer, which was said to be in German hands, lies little more than 20 miles to the southeast of Calais, important channel port on the French side.

International News reported from Berlin that attempts to break through the tightening trap around an estimated 1,000,000 Allied troops "are bound to fail," according to the official German radio, which said: "The British Expeditionary Force in Belgium now faces two alternatives—destruction or capture."—Editor's note.

A French General Salutes His Captors—Gen. Henri Giraud (second from right) salutes a Nazi officer on his arrival at a villa somewhere in Germany . . . after he was flown to Berlin from France where he and his staff were captured. He was in command of the Ninth French Army. International News Service Radiophoto
